'I could swear to it in a court of law, said Capt. Monahan. I am firmly convinced that the robbers were the noted western outlaw and his son. And then the prisoner—he looks exactly like the outlaw. The two men have been around Third avenue and Forty-sixth around Third avenue and Forty-sixin street for nearly a week, so that I have excellent descriptions of them. "James Dalton absolutely refuses to give any information about his partner in the crime, though I had him in my well defended, if it takes every cent of the money." That utterance convinces me that the old man is related to the prisoner in some way, else he would not have said he had so much confidence in him. But Bill Dalton is said to be dead. He has been reported dead half a dozen times, but I know that he is alive. I am positive that he is the man we are after."

"The prisoner known as James Dalton, when arraigned in court, took the proceedings as a matter of course, entered a plea of not guilty, and waived examination. He did not deny that he was Bill Dalton's son. What difference does it make, said he, 'who I am? I am here, pinched, and I ain't going to say a word. I'll stand my trial and if 'they' can convict me let them do it. They've got to stand against a good dawyer, though, because I'm going to be well defended. I won't say whether my father's name is Bill or Jim or Jack. I'm the one that's got to stand for this."

The robbery for which Dalton was arrested was committed in the hallway of a tenement, where Hildebrandt, a young clerk for a brewing firm, lived. Hildebrandt, while en route to the bank with about $5000 in cash and checks, stopped at home for his noon imeal. In the hallway two men sprang hupon him. He fought them to the ktreet, where he was knocked almost senseless, just as a policeman arrived. Dalton was seized, but his confederate escaped with the satchel containing the runds.

When he was taken out he lapsed

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—(Special Dispatch.) Barring a drizzling rain, today was favorable for the experiments in aerial navigation which are being conducted under the direction of Octave Chanute on the shore of Lake Michigan concepts. Due Perk Lind in this city that the military commander of it was Brig. Juan Ruls Rivera, a native of Porto Rico, who fought in the Cuban army during the ten-year war.

The cargo landed consisted of 1107 rifles, 460,000 rounds of ammunition, one pneumatic dynamite gun, 2000 pounds of dynamite, 1000 machetes, and a large supply of medical stores and clothing. The rifles are especially adapted for the Mauser cartridges used by the Spanish army, a supply of which the Cubans allege can be captured or purchased from the Spanish troops in Cuba.

The dynamite gun is the most prized feature of this expedition, and the men who are to handle it were sent down for the purpose and have had a good practice in the way of using it to good advantage. Besides-these men the other members of the expedition are Francisco Gomez, son of the general-in-chief of the Cuban army, Maj. Rault Mart of Gen. Maceo's staff Capt. C. Silas, Capt. Donalato Mardo, Sergts. Le Rio Cordrio, Ernest Hugo of the French army, Adam Velasco, F. J. Blanco, Honorato Mambrun, Enrique Vero, Enrique Delmado, E. Martinez Fonzo, Francis and Arturo Quintano. The flights were made from the side of a sand hill with both machines today, against a wind blowing at the rate of thirty-one miles an hour, with surprising results. Herring, operating the Chanute machine, sailed a distance of 183 feet in eight seconds while William Avery, operating the Herring machine, made a flight of 256 feet in ten seconds. Chanute contends that the experiments today show unmistakable progress, inasmuch as Lillenthal never attempted to use his mackine in a wind blowing faster than ten miles an hour. Both Chanute's assistants were thoroughly in control of the soaring machines, in spite of the high wind. They were several times raised higher than the starting point of their flight, and were occasionally driven sidewise by shifting currents of air, yet were able to preserve the general line of flight and alight safely every time. moves from the east upon Havana this autumn.

The Lorain county delegation joined the representatives of the Pennsylvania Republican League and the Erie, Pa., Lincoln Club, in the public square, and marched with them nearly wenty-five hundred strong, with half a dozen bands and scores of banners to the home about which daily are gathered thousands. The banners on the trains and in the street read: "Tom

"Open our mills, not our mints,"
"Lorain county sound-money pil-"Lorain county sound-money pil-grims," "Protection to American farers and mechanics." George J. Steele of Oberlin spoke for the Lorain county people.

For the Republican leagues of Penn. sylvania and the Erie Lincoln Club, Judge J. F. Downing immortalised Lincoln at length, and then, turning to Maj. McKinley, said: "We are convinced that no mistake will be the boy soldier of 1861 and the wise and experienced statesman of 1896in the Presidential chair, and let me ay we are going to do it."

The united Pennsylvanians and Ohioans cheered and cheered again as Maj. McKinley made his response:

emerged from that war with an interest-bearing debt of $2,383,000,000 or $70 per capita for our entire population in 1865, will not now, after having honestly paid three-fourths of that great debt, ever seek directly or indirectly to repudiate one dollar of it, or cheapen the coin of payment. (Applause.)

A people, I say, who proceeded in good faith to pay off that debt with such unparalleled rapidity that it was estimated, in 1888, that up to that time they had paid $123 for every minute of every day of every year from 1865 to 1883, will not now faiter, bargain or scheme to defraud any creditor of the government, whoever or wherever he may be. (Tremendous applause, and cries of "Hurrah for McKinley.") A people who had the satisfaction of seeing that debt reduced to $585,000,000 on March 3, 1893, at the close of the splendid administration of President Harrison (applause) will readily and quickly maet both the remainder of the old debts and all that has been since made (laughter) and pay it off, principal and interest, in the best money of the world and recognized by the civilized nations to be the best at the time of payment (loud applause.) just as President

Jackson paid off the last of the revolutionary debt, sixty years or more after the first of it had been contracted.

THE FAITH THAT IS IN HIM.

THE FAITH THAT IS IN HIM.
This, my fellow-citizens of Vermont, is the faith the election in your State inspires in me, but that is not all. In that verdict I see unalterable determination of the people of the United States, for whom she has the honor to first speak, to restore the protective tariff system once more to our statute books. (Great cheering.)
Vermont is an agricultural State, but her keen, sagacious and honest farmers know full well the value of protection and its reciprocity. (Applause.) They have profited by experience. They have examined both their store books, and they have had plenty of time to do it (laughter) in the past three years, and have learned that their products have been worth less than at any time for a long series of years.
WHAT THE FARMERS WANT.

WHAT THE FARMERS WANT. "The farmers of this country want a rotective tariff (applause, and cries f "That's right,") and they mean to have it. So, too, will our farmers everywhere decide. They are naturally everywhere decide. They are naturally conservative, and their unerring com-mon sense and common honesty wil-lead them quickly to detect the falla-cies of free silver, just as they hav-learned the fallacies of free trade. (Ap-

learned the fallacies of free trade. (Applause.)

Citizens of Vermont, I congratulate you upon the example and courage of the "Green Mountain Boys," who fought at Bennington and Gettysburg (applause) the long line of eminent and worthy men who have contributed to the national galaxy, the great worth of your present distinguished public servants, both in State and national councils, the many great names you have given to many great names you have given to literature, arts and sciences, and espe-cially to mechanics and inventors. But, literature, arts and sciences, and especially to mechanics and inventors. But, above all, I congratulate you upon the high character of the population you have sent to other States, as well as that which you have kept at home, (Applause.) Your devotion to your best interests, your love of liberty and the enlightened principles of free government, your love of social order and respect for law, come to us of the new States as a most gracious inspiration and positive strength.

No poor words of mine could express the debt of gratitude I feel as so richly due you in the pending contest. Your acts are louder than words, and point the way to grander results. You have set the pace, you have lifted up the standard of public honor. I appreciate most highly your call upon me, made at your discomfort and trouble, but I value far more the proud service you have rendered your country in this emergency in our history. (Tremendous applause.)

you have rendered your country in this emergency in our history. (Tremendous applause.)
Fellow-citizens, I assure you that it gives me pleasure to welcome you here to my home. I cannot find words to express my appreciation of the courtesy and cordiality of the call, and it will afford me sincere pleasure to meet all of you and greet each one of you personally. (Tremendous cheering, and cries of "Hurrah for McKinley.")

MAKING AN ISSUE. Germany to Reinstate Said Khalld on the Throne.

ZANZIBAR, Sent 11 -(By Atantic Cable. Associated Press Copyright, 1896.) The belief is prevalent here that Germany does not intend to acquiesce in the action taken by the British government through Admiral Rawson, in appointing Hamoud Bin Mohammed Bin Said, Sultan of Zanzibar. Said Khalid, the alleged usurper, has been at the German Consulate ever since the fall of the palace, and in spite of the request of the British Consul for his surrender, there has been no disposi-tion manifested on the part of the Ger-man officials to give him up. Rumors are in circulation here that it is the intention of the German authorities to reinstate Said Khalid on the throne from which he was deposed by force of British arms.

THE GUATEMALA CUP.

Band of Schemers Win Two Hundred Thousand Dollars. (BY THE TIMES' SPECIAL WIRE.)

SACRAMENTO, Sept. 11.—(Special Dispatch,) One of the biggest coups of the turf has just been accomplished at the city of Gautemala, whereby a confederacy headed by Emilio Schuman cleaned up $200,000 in Gautemala money. Schuman is a livery-stable keeper of Guatemala, and has frequently im-ported horses to race in that country. The Guatemala cup is an annual event, Francisco Ojeda brought several horses from California this year in the expectation of capturing the event. There were three starters, ostensibly in different interests, but two were thought to belong to Emilio Schuman. Ether, a horse that had already performed on the Guatemala turf, was a terrific favorite, while Ojeda's Aloha was a heavy second choice. The rank outsider was Prudent, a Himyar mare. stable companion

Thousands thronged to see the race, and it was estimated that 15,000 people were present. The betting was fast and furious. Ether sold for $100 and Aloha $60, while Prudent brought $10. The latter gradually advanced in the betting, as the confederacy had thousands of dollars to wager. They succeeded in getting 15 and 10 to 1 for their money at the start, but were finally compelled to accept 5 and 4 to 1. It was like finding money, however, as the people who planned the coup knew that Prudent could beat Ether haif a city block. See Nicholo, a California jockey, had the mount of Prudent, but no one in Guatemala knew anything about him but Schuman. He was kept in the background. ands thronged to e the race.

Frank H. Lemon, an ex-police officer, who now lives in Redondo, walked into police headquarters early this morning and reported that he had been brutally clubbed by a policeman.

Lemon's face was covered with blood, which had oozed from a cut over his left eye, and his shirt front was also stained with blood. There were three or four large lumps on his head, and another on his left hand, made, as he said, by the officer's crub.

Lemon said he was standing on North Main street, waiting for a friend, shortly after 2 o'clock this morning, when the officer approached and ordered him to move along. Lemon told him he was waiting for a friend, and the officer told him to move on anyway, and then began cursing him and threatened to club him.

Lemon dared him to do so, and the officer raised his club and struck him repeatedly and felled him to the ground. He got up and told the officer that he should be ashamed of himself for such brutality, and then came up town and reported the matter. Who the officer was, Lemon did not know, but says he will find out and fight the case.

Kansas City tomorrow morning at 6:15 o'clock, and Bryan will address the citizens of that city at 9 o'clock.

At 9:45 o'clock he will continue on his trip to St. Louis, making short speeches from the platform of the car all along the route. Mrs Bryan will not accompany her husband through the South, but is expected to join the party later.

Bryan, when he reached his car before leaving Lincoln, was called upon to make a speech. In response he said in part: "Ladies and gentlemen: I do not know whether I will return to Nebraska again until just before the election or not, but I go away from Nebraska feeling that it is not necessary. for me to stay here. I want to say to you, my friends, that from the reports which I have been receiving. I do not believe there is a single county in this State that the Republicans are sure of carrying this fall. And more than that, every day makes our cause stronger throughout the Union than it was the day before. Every day finds persons who are declaring for free silver, and I think that! I am safe in saying that you will not find among all your acquaintances any one who one month ago was in favor of free silver at 16 to 1, and able to give a reason for it, who has changed his mind. We can show you men who were in favor of free coinage a month ago, but who have kept quiet about it, because of some influence. And you cannot find any men who were for free coinage who are thinking themselves into the gold-standard idea."

At Eagle a crowd of 100 farmers had gathered about the depot, and a bonfire had been built in honor of the passing of the nominee. Bryan shook hands with them, and found many personal friends among them.

Advice of the St. James Gazette Britishers. (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.)

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The St. James Gazette, commenting on the rise in the bank rate, and the causes of the outflow of gold, says:

"At any rate, it is the American who ominates the financial situation, and he is likely to continue to do so unti the election in November and afterward. As regards the prospects of the election, most Englishmen assume co fidently that McKinley will be election and he probably will be, though is seems to us undesirabe to speculate too freely on the elections in a country where public opinion is so easily irritated by anything in the nature of English.

"Englishmen have no particular reason to regard with affection a party leader whose platform includes a virulent denouncement of England, and the open threat that English debts will be paid in depreciated currency. On the other hand, there is no occasion why the election in November and after-lent denouncement of England, and the open threat that English debts will be paid in depreciated currency. On the other hand, there is no occasion why they should enthuse over a statesman whose chief political achievement has been to raise Chinese-wall triffs around American industries in order to main and penalize the British exporter. Besides, it will do no good in the long run. If McKinley is aupposed to have won with the help of English gold and influence, the reaction will be all the more intense when Bryan comes in, as is not improbable in 1900, even though beaten in November.

"The object of all Englishmen is to be good friends with the people of the United States, if the pestilential activity of the politicians who misrepresent that people will only allow, and this end is not likely to be facilitated by too violent partisanship."

ncluded to give a public answer to the many inquiries made of me upon a subject of great mo-ment, to which general attention is now directed.

Mr. Bryan, in his letter accepting the nomination for President by the convention at Chicago, amplifies the process which that convention made in its platform against Federal interference in local affairs, which, strangely enough, is not found in the platforms of the other conventions which have also appried by which have also nominated him. As nothing else has been proposed to which they could possibly apply, these protests were intended and are understood to be directed against the restood to be directed against the re-cent action of the President in forci-bly suppressing riotous disorders which had stopped the carriage of the mails and interstate commerce, and were defying the civil officers of the United States

THE PREIDENT'S ACTION. The President took this action not only without the requests, but in some instances against the protest of the authorities of the State in which the riots occurred, and Mr. Bryan, taking section 4 of article I of the Constitution to be the law on the subject, pledges himself against any repetition of the violation thereof, which his letter necessarily charges. He incleates the wisdom of the framers of the Constitution by declaring that the local authorities are "beter qualified than the President to judge of the new cessity for Federal assistance.

BRYAN PLEDGED TO ANARCHY.
This is, in my judgment, a far more serious matter than the money question or ony of the other questions that are now before the people, grave as they all are. Our form of government may survive a wrong decision on those questions, and the people endure for a time the evils which result from false systems of finance and taxation, but if the President has deliberately disregarded the instrument upon which the Constitution is founded, by supplanting the authority of a sovereign State by armed force, a precedent has been made which threatens our form of government; while if a candidate for President properly pledge himself in advance, as Mr Bryan has done, to do nothing to protect the property maintain the authority and enforce the laws of the United States, unless and until the officers of another government request or consent, then we really have no Federal government; for a government which is not entirely free to use force to protect and maintain itself in that discharge of its own proper functions is no government at all.

THE SECTION STATED. BRYAN PLEDGED TO ANARCHY.

THE SECTION STATED. THE SECTION STATED.

The section of the Constitution to which Mr. Bryan refers is as follows:
"The United States shall guarantee to every State in this Union a republican form of government, and shall protect each of them against invasion; and on application of the legislature or of the executive (when the legislature cannot be convened,) against domestic violence."

not be convened, against authority lence."

This section plainly refers merely to the protection of the States against the interference with their authority, law or property, by domestic violence, and they are wisely made the sole judges whether and when they need such protection. Mr. Bryan betrays a consciousness of the limited operation of this provision in the expression "Federal assistance," in the clause I have autoted.

STATE RIGHTS LIMITED. But, by the express terms of the Conthe maintenance of the authority or the execution of the laws of the United States within the territory of the State, The prevention and punishment of of-fences connected with the mails, with nterstate commerce, with the adminis-tration of justice in the Federal courts, are committed to the general government, and to it alone. Such offenses no wise menace the general government of the State within which they are com-mitted. Therefore the State cannot require protection against them. The State has no duties to discharge in these matters. Therefore it can re-quire no "Federal assistance" with re-spect to them.

Of course, domestic violences in the recent riots, is directed against both State and Federal authority indiscriminately, so that either or both may suppress it. And in such cases the action of each in maintaining its own action of each in maintaining its own authority over the subjects committed to it, tends to aid the other. But in such cases each is acting in its own independent right as a sovereign government and on its own behalf. It would be absurd to claim that the United States must neglect its own in this, because in protecting them, those of a State may be incidentally protected, and as to the claim that a State must let riot run free because it happens to be directed against Federal rights or officers, as well as its own. This would limit and belittle the sovereignty of both governments. Imperium in imperio would be false.

CONTRARY TO PRINCIPLE.

CONTRARY TO PRINCIPLE.

According to Mr. Bryan, there is somewhere implied in the Constitution, for it is nowhere expressed, a prohibition of the use of force by the United States against persons who, within the limits of a State, may be successfully resisting its officers and Jompletely paralyzing all its operations as a government unless the local authorities shall first make request on give consent. This is contrary to the settled principle that while the Fed ral government is one whose operations are confined to certain subjects all the attributes of sovereignty and one of those is, always and everywhere within the territory of the States which compose it, to suppress and punish those who in any way interfere with the exercise of its lawful powers. The fact that there are within that territory other governments exercising sovereignty over all matters not so committed to it, can make no difference under the double form of government, the essential principle of which is a partition of powers to be exercised independently over the same territory.

THE SOVEREIGN RIGHT. CONTRARY TO PRINCIPLE.

THE SOVEREIGN RIGHT. This sovereign right of the United and agents everywhere they go, protecting and maintaining them in the discharge of their duties. Congress has accordingly, by see, 5297 of the Revised Statutes, authorized the President to use the armed forces of the zovernment in aid of State authorities when requested by them, as provided in the Constitution, and has also, by the following see, 5298, authorized him to employ such forces, upon his own judgment alone against "unlawful obstructions, combinations or assemblages of persons, in whatever State or Territory thereof, the laws of the United States may be forcibly opposed, or to the execution thereof, forcibly obstructed."

It was under the power conferred by the section last-named that the late rebellion was suppressed. Mr. Bryan's doctrine that this law is unconstitutional is more dangerous than that of secession; the latter at least left the government some power and authority in the territory which chose to remain; Mr. Bryan's would reduce it to the idle mimicry of the State. It was no more intended to make the general government dependent upon the States, with respect to the matters committed to it, than to make the States subject to the general government with respect to the rights reserved to them. As the general government is authorized to maintain a regular army and navy, which the States cannot do as the militia of all the States is subject to the direct call of the President, it was natural that the States should be made to call on it for aid against violence but there was no reason why it should call or wait on them for protection to itself.

DANIEL'S RESOLUTION.

DANIEL'S RESOLUTION.

What I have said is well known to lawyers and students of the Constitution. It is chiefly intended for the people at large, before whom the subject has now been brought. I will recall in this connection the following resolution proposed by the Hon. John W. Daniel of Virginia, who was president of the convention which nominated Bryan, which was passed by the Senate July 12, 1894 (Congressional Record page 8863), without apparent dissent: "Resolved, that the Senate indorse the prompt and vigorous measures adopted by the President of the United States and the members of his administration to repulse and repress by military force the interference of lawless men with the due process of the laws of the United States, and with the transportation of the "mails of the United States and with commerce between the States."

The action of the President and his states in the fullest symmat. DANIEL'S RESOLUTION.

The action of the President and his administration has the fullest sympathy and support of the law-abiding masses of the people of the United States, and he will be supported by all departments of the government and by the power and resources of the entire nation.

It must be that Mr. Bryan, amid the many demands on his time and attention, has fallen into an inadvertence. I cannot believe that he really thinks the President has no power under the Constitution and laws to maintain the government entrusted to his charge. Nor can I believe that Mr. Bryan means to promise or to make or permit others to think he has promised not to interfere if he should be elected and the situation of the riots of 189; should arise during his term. I will not lightly situation of the riots of 1894; should arise during his term. I will not lightly question either his knowledge as a lawyer, or his sincerity as a public man. Certainly his letter is generally misunderstood, unless it means either the Mr. Bryan thinks the President has no power, or that he would himself not use it if elected.

ENGRAVING ON DIAMONDS. Portraits of People Adorning Rare

Gems Common as Presents.

(Answers:) Diamonds can now be engraved in a very artistic manner.

The development of the diamond-cutting art brings into existence a new class of jewelry, for which a considerable demand is expected. It was long believed that the diamond could not be engraved with safety or satisfactory results; but a few stones roughly engraved were found in India, and a diamond was exhibited at the Paris exhibition of 1878 on which a and a diamond was exhibited at the Paris exhibition of 1878 on which a portrait of the King of Holland was But the work was very imperfect, and the stones were rather demolished

Party Fealty.

Party Fealty.

(Buffalo Press:) Mrs. Jimsmith had been reading in a newspaper the vaporings of a Bryanite orator. Finally she looked up and asked: "George, just what do the speakers mean when they talk about 'party fealty?" "ft means," replied Jimsmith. "that you are to swallow what is set before you and ask no questions, whether there is a quall on the plate or a yellow dog."

Labor Council Support Dumped a Lond of Hay-Legislative and County Nominations.

The Republican party of Los Angeles ounty yesterday put a fine hand-polish upon the piece of work that it hewed out on Thursday. That bit of handi-work is the coffin of the railroad push, and it is a thing of beauty and a joy forever. It is solid, substantial and secure, and the people of this end of the State have the happiness to hope that it is air-tight, and that the lid is crewed down so firmly that not a whiff of the corrupt contents shall ever escape to offend the nostrils of the community or pollute the politics of Los Angeles, Republican or Democratic.

The discredited and disreputable lieutenants of the railroad's hired heeler sullenly tried to transfer to district conventions the methods and schemes that had been flung out of the window by the county convention, but they had lost their confidence in the punctured boss, and their work was half-hearted, raw and perfunctory.

Anything tainted with Lindleyism or smelling of the Herald was rejected with contempt, and the misguided Republicans, who had permitted their belief in the comprehense of benefits. lief in the omnipotence of bossism to lead them into bad company, were sent to the rear to learn a few lessons in true Republicanism and good citizen-

The Mortons, Pendletons, Roses The Mortons, Pendletons, Roses, Weyses, Garlands, Baldwins and others of that ilk were turned down firmly, and soundly birched for getting mixed up with the Sam Adamses of politics. It is usually considered unfair to hit a fallen foe, but there are some foes that may be jumped on and kicked without compunction, and with perfect propriety. The Southern Pacific's political pests belong to this class, and the chief merit of the process of postmortem pedipulation is that it insures a political funeral at railroad expense and under Uncle Collis's personal supervision, for Uncle Collis has no use for a political peon who falls to syreak for a political peon who falls to wreak his will upon the people. The convention knocked down Lind-ley the bosslet on Thursday, when it indorsed Perkins, and spoiled Uncle Collis's sly scheme of making the people of Los Angeles appear to stultify themselves in the harbor-steal matter. That indorsement of Perkins was enough of itself to let Lindley out of enough or itself to let Lindau de his job, and make Uncle's hair curl, but the convention happened to think of another resolution calculated to afor another resolution calculated to af-flict the railroad with pangs, and it passed an anti-funding declaration, couched in positive and blunt language, with a whoop that was heard all over the county. To borrow a bit of expressive slang from the push, the Republicans of Southern California "didn't do a thing" to the railroad's politica The resolution, slipped into the platform by a Populist agitator and boycotter, advising clubs and candidates to recognize as organized labor only one particular union of printers, caused some trouble of mind among the dele-gates. Some job printer, resenting the only printers subservient to a crowd of boycotters have any right to work and earn a living, distributed, as an offset to a flood of impudent circulars de-signed to intimidate and bully the delegates, this card: IS THIS PLAIN ENOUGH? Your resolution demanding the union label on all political printing puts money in the sack of the union to fight label on all political printing puts money in the sack of the union to fight your candidates—because, on September 6, the Labor Congress indorse as their nominees ten Democrats and Populists and but two Republicans. If there is any consistency in this convention, rescind that resolution. Out of nearly fifty job-printing offices in this city, not more than ten actually employ union printers.

Another, but similar card, bore the Typographical Union label as an illustration of what the Labor Council demanded, and this made the boycotters and buildozers so wild with rage that they went about last night threatening to have somebody arrested for the sacrilege of using their totem without authority.

The delegates and committeemen, who thoughtlessly permitted themselves to be used by Populist disturbers and enemies of the Republican party, may be interested in the fact that the only candidate before the convention who used the label commended so strongly in the pool resolution, was James Hay, candidate for Supervisor in the Fourth District, and the use of the label and the support of the Typographical Union were so valuable to him that he received only thirteen votes on the first ballot, six and one-half on the third and none on the last. votes on the first ballot, six and one-half on the third and none on the last. The Republicans of the convention may be interested also in the further fact that the same "Council of Labor" that buncoed them through the Resolu-tions Committee distributed in the hall a card announcing that the council proposed to "use every effort to de-feat" every candidate on the Repub-lican ticket.

PROCEEDINGS.

PROCEEDINGS.

The convention was called to order at 10 o'clock by Chairman Overton, who started the work promptly and in a business-like manner, giving clear and full instructions concerning the district conventions and the forms to be observed in compliance with the election laws. Secretary Conrad had provided blank minutes and reports containing the necessary forms and resolutions, thereby greatly facilitating the business and preventing the occurrence of irregularities through any possible oversight or failure on the part of delegates to fully comprehend the requirements of the law.

ASSEMBLY NOMINEES.

The Assembly district conventions

The Assembly district conventions were held separately, some in the conwere held separately, some in the convention hall and others in the rooms of the Young Men's Republican League. In the Seventieth District the candidates for nomination were H. G. Weyse and Henry H. Rose, supported by what was left of the machine, and Walter S. Melick, reform. The result of the first ballot was: Melick, 65½; Rose, 42; Weyse, 19. Melick, editor of the Lancaster Gazette, was nominated. In the Seventy-first District the candidates were J. C. Vosburg of Sierra Madre, O. Huber and George H. Peck, If there was a machine candidate it was Huber. Vosburg received 35 votes and was nominated. Huber had 29 and Peck 5.

In the Seventy-third George F. McCulloch and F. H. Teale were candidates. McCulloch was nominated by votes, Teale receiving 30.

In the Seventy-fourth there was a four-cornered fight between L. H. Valentine and W. N. James on the reform side, and J. Morton and C. W. Pendleton, 28;

James, 9, James then withdrew and ten of Pendleton's votes quit him. Valentine was nominated by 67 votes on the second ballot.

FOR SUPERVISORS.

The candidates for Supervisor in the Second District were Robert E. Wirsching, the Police Commissioner; George Alexander and F. W. Stein. On the third ballot Wirsching received 80 1-3 votes and Alexander 60 2-3. Wirsching, who was nominated, is claimed by the push, but the claim is dubious.

In the Fourth District there were many candidates. A. E. Davis, James Hay, Thomas Stowell, D. M. Crum, C. E. Mitchell and Charles Baldwin were named. The contest was really between Davis, reformer, and Baldwin, who was backed by the push and a sack. Four ballots were taken, and after the third all the contestants except Davis and Baldwin dropped out. On the fourth Davis received 66 votes and Baldwin 48.

The candidates in the Fifth District were E. E. Johnson, George L. Stearns and J. C. Sherer. Johnson led from the start, and gained steadily until he was nominated by 49% votes on the fourth ballot.

BULLA FOR SENATOR.

BULLA FOR SENATOR.

The convention of the Thirty-seventh enatorial District was held in the main Senatorial District was held in the main hall, James W. Long presiding. Frank Dominguez, of the Third Ward, placed the name of Robert N. Bulla before the convention in the best nominating speech heard during the two days. Dominguez is a young man, apparently not more than 23 or 24 years old, but he is a natural orator, possessing an excellent voice, a fine presence and a good command of language. His manner is earnest and fiery and if he is a bit too much enamored of orate figures of speech and oratorical fireworks, that must be attributed to the enthusiasm of youth. His speech caught the convention, and when he ceased speaking Bulla was nominated by acclamation with three rousing cheers. The delegates called loudly for Bulla, and the nominee stepped to the platform and said:

R. N. BULLA'S SPEECH.

"Mr. Chairman, ladies and gentlemen of the convention: As I do not possess the eloquence of my young friend who so kindly and ably presented my name to this convention, I find it difficult to express my profound appreciation of the manner in which you have tendered me the nomination for the office for which I have been a candidate.

"The nomination by acclamation for the office of State Senator, by more than two hundred of the representative citizens of the Thirty-seventh Senatorial District, one of the most populous in the State, and second to none in the intelligence, refinement and integrity of its people, is a compliment of which any citizen in this State might well be proud, and I desire now in my feeble way to thank you most heartily and sincerely for the honor that you have thus conferred upon me.

"I appreciate your generous action nonor that you have thus conterred upon me.

"I appreciate your generous action the more because I choose to consider it not simply an expression of confidence in me at this time, but also in some measure, at least, as an indorse-ment of my services rendered in the two preceding sessions of the Legisla-ture of this State. I appreciate it also because I think I realize very clearly and forcibly the requirements of that position.

"Vast and far-reaching as are the problems of national legislation, it is the province of the Legislatures of the several States to enact neariy all the laws most closely affecting the everyday life and interests of the people all the laws governing the ownership, transfer and descent of property—all the laws governing our personal relations, those of marriage and divorce, guardian and ward, master and servent—all the laws controlling and directing our educational interests and institutions—all the laws most closely affecting the relations of labor and capital, are enacted in the Legislatures of the several States, and not in the Congress of the United States. It is certainly evident, therefore, that only honest and competent men should be entrusted with the discharge of these grave and responsible duties.

"Unfortunately both the press and the people of California seem to have accepted the belief that the members of the Legislature of our grat commonwealth are as a body both dishonest accepted the belief that the members of the Legislature of our grat common-wealth are as a body both dishonest and incompetent, and norwithstanding this belief they frequently do not ex-ercise the care they should in the se-lection of their representatives in the legislative department of our State government. Thus, by their negligenec, they assist in the perpetuation of the very evil of which they so loudly pro-claim.

government. Thus, by their negligenec, they assist in the perpetuation of the very evil of which they so loudly proclaim.

"That there is some truth in this commonly-accepted opinion, I am compelled to admit, but that there is any such general corruption as is currently believed. I unhesitatingly deny. Personally I believe that the great majority of the members of the California Legislature, at least during the two sessions of which I have had any personal knowledge, were honest and conscientious men, earnestly desiring to legislate for the best interests of their constituents, and that by far the greater portion of the evil legislation which has found its way upon our statute books is caused by incompetence and ignorance rather than by dishonesty and corruption.

"But however much or little truth there may be in this prevailing opinion, it is self-evident that the only way to improve the situation is by the selection of better and more honorable men for legislative office, and as this selection rests solely and entirely with the people, it is very clear that we have only ourselves to blame if the members of our Legislature are otherwise than satisfactory. And nothing is truer than that if good men refuse to accept public offices, bad men will, secure them, and I believe that no one can render a more patriotic service to his country than by accepting such public position as may be tendered him by his fellow-citizens, and having accepted, discharge the duties of his office in such a manner as to win or retain the good opinion of his friends and neighbors—those among whom his daily life is passed.

"Now, my friends, the national campaign upon which we have entered is one which will prove to be memorable in the history of our country and our party; and while it is neither proper nor desirable that I should here engage in any discussion of the all-important issues of this campaign, it is not improper that I should here engage in any discussion of the all-important issues of this campaign, it is not improper that I foundation stone of Republican principles—protection for American industries and American workmen—has been ignored during the last three years of our national administration, with the result that today our factories are closed, our spindles are silent, our workmen are idle, our farmers are without a market for their produce, and we have added to our national debt more than two hundred and fity millions of dollars.

"Even our Supreme Court, that Gibraltar of safety, established by the fathers of our Constitution, a tribunal which has given to history a Marshall and a Story, and which has long been conceded to be among the ablest and purest tribunals of the world, even that august body has been covertly attacked in the national platform of one of our great political parties. And there are unmistakable intimations that that tribunal should be reorganized in order to obtain a decision in accordance with the views of its critics.

"Now, my friends, I am not here to discuss the merits or demerits of the income tax. Personally I do not hesitate to say that I believe it a just and proper tax; but this declaration to which I have referred, is to my mind the most revolutionary and alarming ever adopted in any political platform in our country—one that strikes at the very root and substance of our existence as a nation and our liberties as a people.

"Fellow-Republicans, this is a time very root and substance of our existence as a nation and our liberties as a people.

"Fellow-Republicans, this is a time when every Republican should remember the principles of his party, principles which have always been held dearest and most sacred in that party, which I believe to be the greatest, purest and best political party that ever sustained a nation in its darkest hours of trial, and safely guided its affairs when the great struggle was forever ended; and I believe that each of us here today should deem it his most sacred privilege to use every honorable means in his power to defeat the nominees who stand upon a platform so antagonistic to every principle for which we have stood as a party, as is the Democratic platform adopted at Chicago. I believe this to be our duty, not simply as Republicans, but as true American citizens thoroughly imbued with love of our country and determined at whatever cost to preserve that country and her institutions—a country which has done more than any other upon the face of the earth for the advancement of humanity. Biberty and which has done more than any other upon the face of the earth for the advancement of humanity, liberty and civilization.

"Are we ready, then, as Republicans, as American citzens, to entrust the afairs of this beloved country of ours in the hands of an inexperienced man, dominated by an untried theory? I say no, a thousand times no. And I want to say to you that there is only one way in which that can be prevented, and that is by bending every energy to secure the election of the standard-bearer or our own grand old party, that brave soldier, able statesman and upright citizen, who will bring to the executive mansion ripe experience, sound judgment and spotless patriotism, William McKinley of Ohio!"

Loud and continued applause followed the mention of Maj. McKinley's name, and the delegates settled down to await the long-delayed reports of the district conventions. Several attempts were made to hurry up the Fourth Supervisor District, but all failed. An otherwise tedious period of inactivity was relieved by speeches by Delegates de Leur, Teed and Dominguez.

Mr. Teed spoke facetiously as one of the "barrelites," or defeated workers. He said he had tried to get several of his friends nominated, and had failed in every case, but he and his friends would not sulk in their tents; they would work for the ticket, and do their best to maintain the position of Los Angeles as the banner Republican county. Mr. Teed announced his retirement from public life, and said he hoped to retire with the lil-feeling of none, and the good-will of all.

Mr. Dominguez expained that he had been a Democrat, but had burned the bridges behind him, and repudiated the actions of his younger days. He had been a Jeffersonian Democrat, and he could not swallow the Populist

Rogers, the convicted train-robber, un-der sentence of death for robbing a Southern Pacific train at Maricopa in 1894, in company with Frank Armer, was to have been hanged on the 15th inst., but Gov. Franklin intervened and commuted the sentence to forty years in the penitentiary. The Governor gave as his reason for commuting the sentence that Rogers was led by Frank Armer. The latter was allowed to plead guilty at his trial, and was sen-tenced to thirty years. Rogers was not allowed to enter a like plea, and the result was that he was found guilty of

Moreover, the commutation of the sentence was rec-ommended by the sentencing judge, the grand and trial jurors and the District grand and trial jurors and the District Attorney of the county in which Rog-ers was tried. The Secretary of State was asked to use his influence to save Rogers, by the Swedish Minister. On these grounds the Governor commuted the sentence.

A posse was formed here of our best trackers and trailers, and by 3 o'clock of the next morning the camp of the firm was located. The officers managed to draw every load from the trio's Winchesters, as they had left guns, saddles and horses while foraging for feed. From a blind trail they approached, each carrying a bundle of hay, and at the order to "Throw up your hands," Rogers and Donovon fied, while Armer fell early, his arm and right shoulder full of "slugs," in return for his hasty, harmless firing.

Rogers was captured ten days later at Sentinel; Armer was placed in a hospital, and is now "doing time" for thirty years at Yuma Penitentiary, having pleaded guility to "robbery," while Donovon has never been seen nor heard of since. Rogers was tried in the United States District Court under five indictments, at Florence, Ariz, under the plea of "not guilty," but the jury disagreed with him, and Judge Rouse sentenced him to hang, but the constitutionality of the law, referred to at first, was attacked in an appeal to the Territorial Supreme Court; still, that court sustained the findings of the lower court.

ered about five hundred miles, having lost a little time by detours from the direct route.

Mr. Simpson says that his experiences while making the run have made him a strong advocate for the improvement of the country roads in Southern California. For the most part they are in very bad condition and he found riding after dark is a perilous undertaking. The roads are very rough and exceedingly dusty. A welcome contrast to the rest of the route was the run from Santa Barbara to Ventura along the seashore. For a distance of thirty miles he rode along the water's edge at low tide and the sand was smooth and hard as a billiard table. This was the pleasantest portion of his trip. Scenary, track and weather combined to make it delightful, and for the first time Mr. Simpson fully realized the charms of Southern California's climate. Upon this topic he is enthusiastic and he says the claims made by the people of this part of the State are fully Justified. "The climate is all that it is cracked up to be and just as advertised. The glamor of Southern California is strong upon me."

The Ventura River was crossed on the Southern Pacific Railroad bridge, after nightfall, and bumping over the ties in the dark was ticklish business, especially as the headlight of an engine came round a curve just as he was nearing the end of the bridge.

One interesting character that he encountered was a "tramp wheelman," a cyclist without occupation and without home, roaming the country in encountered was a "tramp wheelman," a cyclist without occupation and without home, roaming the country in search of work. His wheel was antique, weighing forty-five pounds, to say nothing of some tools and clothing which weighed eighty pounds more, making a total load of 125 pounds. Travel with this handleap was slow, and at every slight ascent he was obliged to dismount and walk. This new variety of the genus tramp has not yet become common, and might afford fresh inspiration to the humorists who write of the doings of "Weary Waggles" and "Dusty Rhodes."

Coming through Cahuenga Pass, Mr. Simpson and another wheelman whom he had encountered, were having a hard pull over a bad road. It was after dark, and they were both supperless. They had the good fortune to overtake two Italians with a load of grapes, who promptly invited the hungry cyclists to share their supper of sour bread, sour wine, sausage and grapes. This hospitable invitation was heartly accepted. When the meal was finished Mr. Simpson again pushed on for Los Angeles, but in the darkness he missed his direction, and came into the city near Westlake Park. The asphalt streets were a welcome contrast to the country roads, over which he had been streets were a welcome contrast to the country roads, over which he had been country roads, over which he had been traveling.

As a newspaper man, Mr. Simpson was naturally interested in noting the papers which appeared to command attention in the places through which he passed. He said last evening that from Santa Barbara southward he found The Times everywhere, and everywhere its influence was apparent. People read it and quote it, and all along this part of his route he observed the strong hold which The Times has acquired.

Mr. Simpson visited The Times office after his arrival. He will remain in the city for a day or two, returning to San Francisco by rail. He is registered at the Nadeau.

Constantinople Riota.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 11.—(By Atlantic Cable.) Fears are entertained here of a renewal of the recent disorders. Apprehensions have caused a panic among the general public. The shops of Galata and Stamboul were closed early today, owing to a rumor that fresh manifestations were to be organized. Trade is almost at a standstill. The lack of money in the Turkish treasury is a serious feature of the eituation.

Fifteen army officers who went to tha War Office to claim their arrears of pay were informed that they had no funds. The officers thereupon resigned their commissions and were arrested far so doing.

A correspondent requests The Times to publish the financial plank of the Republican national platform for 1888. He says certain persons are claiming that free-silver coinage was advocate in that plank. It is as follows:

The Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and condemns the policy of the Democratic administration in its efforts to demonetize silver."

If any person can find in this paragraph a declaration for free-silver coinage, he is gifted with supernatural vision. It is a declaration in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and against the demonetization of the white metal. This is the Re publican position today, and it is the position which the party has maintained since its inception. It has always been favorably disposed toward silver, and has shown its friendliness not only in platform declarations, but in practical legislation; always maintaining, however, that there shall be but one standard, and that gold. We have now more silver than gold in use in our currency, and Republican legislation has been in a large degree instrumental in making this liberal use of silver possible. But, while advocating the largest possible use of silver as money, the Republican party has never committed itself to the supreme folly of advocating the free, independent and unrestricted coinage of silver by the United States.

DECREASE IN THE BIRTH RATE.

A table lately issued by the officials of the eleventh census shows a diminishing birth-rate in the United States. This will be a matter of surprise to most people. It has been generally supposed that the increase in population of this country between the years 1880 and 1890 was largely due to an in creased birth-rate. Such, however, does not appear to be the case.

The census figures for 1890 show that in every State in the Union there was a decrease in the proportion of births to population as compared with 1880; that the decrease was not confined to a few States, but was general throughout the entire country. New Hampshire was the least remiss in its duty in this matter, the percentage falling only from 18.90 in 1880 to 18.37 of free coinage at first-say, to 80 in 1890. Massachusetts, on the other hand, is the greatest delinquent, the figures showing that the falling off in that State was from 33.18 to 21.51 per cent. Utah also shows a heavy decrease in the birth-rate, it having fallen from 42.29 in 1880 to 33.78 in 1890. The decrease in the case of Utah is not, however, surprising, inasmuch as Congress in 1882 passed a law disfranchising polygamists, and again in 1887 a still more stringent law to the

THE CONVENTION'S GOOD WORK

The Republican County Convention which closed its sessions yesterday was in thorough earnest. Its members realized the importance of the work before them, and they did that work well. From first to last the proceedings of the convention were character ized by the true Republican spirit. It was in all essential respects a model convention, well presided over and well conducted.

The indorsement of United States Senator Perkins by an almost unanimous vote was at once a well-earned tribute to a loyal public servant and a well-deserved rebuke to the pernicious clique which, under the leadership of small-caliber, but perniciously active, sawdust-filled boss, sought to swing he convention into line against Senator Perkins and in support of the Southern Pacific Railway in its unwarranted interference with the political affairs of California.

The result is a complete turning down of the would-be boss and his henchmen at every point. The loss of a State Senator and six Assemblymen tells in part the story of the "com bine's" defeat. It was a clean sweep Not one of the candidates selected by "the gang" was nominated. And the "railroad influence" was further nega tived by the adoption, with a single negative vote, of a resolution oppos ing the funding of the Pacific railroad debts

In short, the victory for just prin ciples and clean politics was complete and magnificent. It was a victory for the people, of the people, and by the

The Times again congratulates the delegates of the Republican County Convention on their splendid work. and takes pleasure in indorsing that work to the fullest extent

One of the notable features of th convention's work was the dignified manner in which the onelaught of the noisy agitators who falsely claim to represent "labor" was ignored. A convention which would allow itself to be frightened by an avowed political enemy would be composed of a set of asses. The Republican County Convention was not a set of asses. It was composed of men who have convictions and dare maintain them. The impudent efforts of the cheap demagogues would have greater weight. In one reath he asserts that the value of the who misrepresent labor to influence a dollar is in direct proportion to the convention toward which they had alnumber of dollars in existence: in other ready declared their hostility, met with signal and deserved failure. When it coined is increased the value decreases is known that the "labor congress," and vice versa. no further emphasis. The utter insincerity and duplicity of the cheap demagogues who assum to represent the interests of labor in or purchasing power of the dollar is this section was revealed when they joined hands with Lindley and his henchmen in opposition to Senator Perkins, thus going squarely back upon their former position on the harpor question, and willingly placing their necks under the Southern Pacific yoke. The reason assigned for this action was so puerile, childish and silly as to betray the petty malice, meanness and subserviency of those who took that the same level as the 200-cent gold course, and to destroy whatever influence they might have possessed. Such political weathercocks, subject to be turned by the slightest breeze, are not to be trusted, and are an injury to any party with which they may prothe value thereof. If, on the other hand, the theory be correct that the fess to affiliate. The last move made value of the dollar decreases in direct yesterday by these mischievous malratio to the number coined, we are contents was to distribute cheap cirbrought face to face with the serious culars announcing their determination to oppose the ticket nominated by the currency. THE PLYERS MUST SLOW UP.

The recent letter of Lord Colville, addressed to the British Lords of the Admiralty, relative to the great speed at which the American line of steam ships are running through the crowded of the Solent, may all be tru enough, but it has been going on for years, even as long back as 1885, when the transatlantic record was held by the two Guion steamers Alaska and Arizona. It seems like a singular corecord across the western ocean was held by the Kaiser Wilhelm and Feurst subsequently by the Campania and Luof the Cunard line, Lord Colville had no objection to interpor against British steamers running through the British Channel, which is crowded with the commerce of six or seven separate nationalities, at a flight of speed hitherto attained only by railway trains.

But as soon as the "blahsted Yankee" comes along with his Pennsylvania-built ships and cuts down the record between New York and Southampton (which is 321 miles further away than Queenstown,) then comes my lord Colville and makes a "here's a how d'ye do" about it. That this complaint can only be based upon lealousy no one will doubt

It may not be known to most of our readers that, in the building of the St Louis and St. Paul of the International line, the marine architect's art has very nearly reached a maximum. This triumph of American models over the ower of British engines is something of slow growth. It began in 1882, when Martin Bulger of San Francisco went n to Philadelphia and built the Alameda and Mariposa of the Spreckels line. The former of these ships established a new record between Auckland and San Francisco and the latter be tween San Francisco and Honolulu

The Union Steamship Company of New Zealand put on a new boat called the Mararoa in 1885, expressly to beat the Yankee ships. She was of about the same size, but had nearly 18 per cent. more power. In spite of all this, she had all she could do to make chedule time (131/2 miles per hour) with fifty-four tons of coal, while the two Yankee ships burned forty-seven and a half as an average. Emboldened the Cramps took a contract with the International (formerly the Inman breakers, St. Paul and St. Louis, which are merely the Mariposa on a larger scale. The following table will show the proportion of nominal horse-power to the gross tonnage of some of the atlantic trade:

w York, Internation

Hence it will be seen that the two new ships of the International line built in America, have the least nominal horse-power in proportion to their gross tonnage of any ships in the trade. As they have each made 3100 miles in 6 days and 3 hours (and one of them in less than that) the speed oust come from the model of the ships rather than from the power of their engines. It is quite evident that no ivalry can be expected from France as La Touraine, the best of all the French ships, is not within fifteen hours of the St. Louis's time nor seven teen and a half hours of the St. Paul's time, although her port (Havre) is but eighty-two miles further from New York than Southampton All large seaport cities have laws which prohibit steam vessels of any sort from running over ten miles pe hour within seven miles of the docl from which they depart. Such is the law in Boston, New York, Philadelphia and Baltimore, and it should be the law everywhere. But if the British Admiralty wish to establish a ten mile-per-hour rule for all vessels ply ing the channel waters, that is all right enough, provided they enforce it against all vessels of all nationalities But if they are going to pin these Yankee record-breakers of ours down to a ten-mile rate between Southampon and The Needles, and, at the san time, allow the Cunard or other British ships to run "wide open" through the same waters, we shall enter a vigorous protest. We repeat, it is a singuno complaint of dangerous speed about the Isle of Wight as long as the British-built steamers held the transatlan-Roger Q. Mills, like Hoke Smith has gone squarely back on his previous record and is supporting the Anarchist ticket and platform. Less than three years ago, in a speech delivered in the United States Senate, Mr. Mills said:

"The wages of labor are constantly getting higher and higher, and the wage-worker is constantly getting more and more of the product of his labor in reward for his toil. And this happy result is because his work is becoming relegible scarcer and more nappy result is because his work is becoming relatively scarcer and more and more valuable to his employer. But to secure him in the great rewards of his toil it is necessary, absolutely necessary, that the standard of the commercial world, which is our standard, shall be preserved. Then he knows, and all the world knows, the value of labor and the value of the things which it is to purchase."

A Kansas newspaper reports that a farmer living near St. John was killed by lightning last week. If the Rev. Mr. Newman of Toronto lever reaches the pinnacle of fame attained by his uncle, the famous English cardinal, he will give the latter a hard race for immortality. His ex quisite hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," shall quell the pangs of loving grief as long as sincere reverence can gather about the bier to pay the last fond tribute to departed worth; and its tender cadences shall call forth every feeling that is holy in the hearts of poor Without waiting to hear of Bryan's election, the New York coal trust put an extra $1 on the price of coal. But, meanwhile, what is to become of the day laborer whose wife and children have to be kept from dying of cold and hunger? And show us the wageearner who thinks his condition im-proved by having to pay more for his black diamonds." The silver cranks who have worked up this agitation will have much for which to answer.

There is a more than usually gloomy and oppressive atmosphere about the big municipal building on Broadway. The bold and unequivocal action of the Republican County Cenvention has convinced the members of the City Council (and the Mayor) that voters are in no mood to trifle with traitors lar thing that Lord Colville could find just now. As Denis Kearney would say, the members of the City Council and the Mayor (and the Mayor's clerk. 'must go."

Between Sir Walter Raleigh and Mayor Pingree of Detroit there is a long lapse of time, but it goes without gaving that no two other men eve made as much reputation out of potatoes as they have done. Horrible Manner.
F. Lightheiser, who resides at No. 1605 St. James street, made a desperate 1605 St. James street, made a desperate and probably successful effort to end his existence early yesterday morning. A driver for the Grand Central Market went to Lightheiser's home yesterday morning and was horrified to find the man prostrate on the kitchen floor in a great pool of blood. He wore only a light undershirt and across his throat from ear to ear was a gaping wound which had severed the windpipe. Ligh, heiser's left wrist was cut to the bone, the cords and arteries being cut in twain and across his abdomen was a cut two inches deep and eight inches long.

The police were notified and officer Sparks went to the scene in advance of the patrol wagon. When he got there he searched high and low for the weapon Lighthelser had used, but could not find it. He did find a razor case and it is posible that the wounds were made with a razor.

Lighthelser was conveyed to the Receiving Hospital where Dr. Bryant sewed up the wounds. It is thought that the man cannot live. He was unable to talk much, but said he had done the deed because he had much trouble.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES One by One the Roses Fall

PASADENA, Sept. 11.—(To the Edito f The Times:) The nomination of Valter S. Melick for the Assembly tyes much satisfaction in Pasadens there Republicans have not been slow where Republicans have not been slow to express themselves in the past few days on the braxenness of the attempt of a few would-be bosses to foist upon this district H. H. Rose, a man who openly avows his devotion to "the sack" as the controlling principle in politics; who boasts of being a "Lindley man" and a representative of that particular "push," and whose private morality is so far below par that men who make no particular boast on that score do not care to consort with him. Reputable Republicans who espoused the "straight" doctrine in municipal affairs last spring, have declared themselves today as gratified that the "gang" signally failed in their attempt to nominate Rose for a position which he would disgrace, and that they are tired of circling about the mouth of a whisky bottle to show their allegiance to the party. The methods of the few politicians here who have attempted to control political matters in Pasadena are repudiated by those who have been their best friends in the past, for they have not been frank and open, have savored of the "machine," and have driven honest and patriotic men to the conclusion that they must have representation that truly represents. It has been a matter of shame to Pasadena Republicans who attended the Los Angeles county convention to see that Pasadena, by the tactics of the bosses here who have tried to control things for their unsavory candidate, had no character nor standing in the convention, and so were unable to stand united for some good man from our own city, who could have harmonized the warring factions, headed old wounds, and made the delegation a righteous power. The day of "bosses" of any sort or condition has gone by here, and the tricksters who attempt to control the party for their own ends may take warning by the events of the past few days, and give over the attempt forever. It is certainly true that men who have never before felt that the exigencies of local politics where such that their influence was needed, have lately acknowledged the necessity

Advice to Bryss.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 11.—(To the Editor of The Times;) J. W. Cooper, a McKinley Democrat, was pointing out the anarchistic trend of Bryan's doctrine the other day, when a follower of the silver myth seked what he would have Bryan do. Mr. Cooper repiled: "Were I Mr. Bryan's adviser, I would suggest to him that it would be of much better grace for him to go back to the plains of the Platte and there gather the bones of the buffaloes which my comrades and I killed away back in 1852, when driving the first flock of sheep that ever crossed the continent to California; grind up the bones and save the meal, and after the noble McKinley has gone to his final rest, use the bone dust to fertilize shrubbery around McKinley's grave in honor of what he did to save and build up the great nation which Bryan is trying to destroy."

A well-matured lemon in San Diego has sprouted, and through its thick skin a tiny green shoot has forced its way from a seed which has germinated within the fruit. This shoot is now two inches long and little leaves are be-ginning to take form at the end of it.

San Diego, through its Supervisor of the county, is torn up over the subject of skirt danoing and young women in tights. This is a question that has agitated more than one community, and the country will wait in suspense to see how our southwestern neighbors set-

The Popocrats and the straight Pops of Orange county got together yesterday at Santa Ana and sweat and struggled over a fusion scheme, which will probably result in a deal looking to a right royal grab for the loaves and fishes. When the connublators have fishes. When the connubiators have done, the voters will take a hand in the proceedings, and as to the subsequent proceedings—well, they will probably be considerably different. You can lead a voter to a fusion youd, but you cannot make him drink,

The dull season in the Courthouse will probably end today. Beginning with Monday nearly all of the six departments of the Superior Court will be in season, and the drawing of juries and calling of lengthy calendars will restore the big building's wonted scene of crowding humanity. A large number of crowding humanity. A large number of criminal causes will speedily come to trial, and a big daily grist will be turned out by the Los Angeles county judicial mill. The convention cyclone struck the Courthouse, but the same old faces promise to mete out justice from the superior benches.

The grand, good work commenced in county convention on Friday was itinued all day yesterday, and when the battle was over, "the shove" was completely pushed off the face of the blooming earth. There have been gallant victories won before in politics, but so far as Los Angeles county is concerned, there never has been one achieve more complete and none that will be more lasting in its ef-fects than the one which left the field strewn with the ragged remnants of the gang yesterday afternoon. The 10-cent boss, who has been swelling around with the rag-tag and bobtail of the push at his heels to do his dirty work, has been gloriously slumped and the sound, solid and sensible Republishes of Lora Argeles courty did. licans of Los Angeles county did it.

Is insanity on the increase? It would seem so, judging from the daily reports in the courts of this county and elsewhere throughout the State and the Union. In many of these cases financial disappointments have induced melan-tholy and insomnia. Little good can be accomplished by brooding over mis-takes and might-have-beens. Men must deal with the present, and in doing so should have a careful regard for the future. One should look upon the bright side of life and make the most of bright side of life and make the most of every opportunity. The present may have its discouragements, but it should not be looked upon through the blackness of the night. No thought is better than brooding thought. During periods of industrial depression like the present the active American mind is apt to rush from fancy to fury, and from mirth to melancholy; these are the primary seeds of insanity, and if not held in check may develop into Bode's Sketches.

Art connoisseurs will be glad to learn that the series of San Francisco's Chinatown sketches by the late William Bode is going to be reproduced and sold in book form. The sketches have been very highly spoken of by art critics, so that there is reason to believe their reproduction will find ready sale. The death of the artist was a very sad one, gendered all the more so in the fact that he left a widow and six children in destitute circumstances. Some kind friends in San Francisco did not, however, forget them, and the same friends are helping to have the sketches reproduced so that the proceeds from the sale of them may further assist in alleviating the wants of the artist's family. One of his works entitled "Work on the Old Seawall," has been very highly praised.

RATIFICATION.

YOUNG MEN'S REPUBLICAN LEAGUE REJOI OVER NOMINATIONS.

Enthusiastic and Well-attended Meeting-Speeches from Several of the Nominces-A Joyful Polit-ical Love Feast.

Strictly in it, as usual, the Young Men's Republican League gave a rousing ratification meeting last evening to the nominees of the county convention. Although tired with the strain of the past two days, quite a number of the nominees were present, and a general political love-feast was in order. The hall of the Stowell building was crammed to the doors with eager listeners to the speakers, and those who overflowed into the ante-rooms consoled themselves with the refreshing contents of large punch bowls.

Senator Robert M. Bulla was the first speaker called upon to declare his sentiments and a roar of applause went up as the gentleman stepped to the platform. He gave the usual pledges to support the strict and honest administration of the laws that exist, and for the enactment, so far as law in his power, of statutes for the best interests of the people, and the manner of giving these pledges convinced the hearers that they were listening to a man who meant every word he was saying, and would stand by his colors till the last gun was fired. As far as he is concerned. Senator Bulla does not propose to carry on the government according to strict party lines, but declared his intention of doing his best for an honest government and for the interest of the community at large.

Solors till the last gaw was now may all a large and a large was the last gaw was free Buld one not propose to carry on the government and constructions of propose to carry on the government and the last game of the state of the last game of th those who were young men in that other period of the nation's danger, and are the bone and shew of their country now.

Judge Lucien Shaw, the next speaker, opened with a plain statement that he did not mean to inflict any lecture upon the young men, because he had never yet been able to realize that he was not a young man himself.

He congratulated Mr. Valentine upon his nomination for the Assembly, and gave him a gentle hint for future use by expressing a strong hope that the laws to be enacted by the coming Legislature would be short and to the point, instead of the remarkable aggregations that seem to have been built up to puzzle the judiciary and finally to come to the ignominious end of being knocked out by the Supreme Court as unconstitutional.

Judge Shaw then gave some very plain talk to his constituents upon the duties of his office, which require that neither fear nor favor shall be shown to any man or any party, no matter how great the political obligations incurred by a nominee for the judgeship. Other men might return the favors shown them, but the judge can make no acknowledgement other than the honest and impartial performance of the duties of his office.

Frank Dominguez was next called upon for a speech, and after some hesitation on the ground of weariness, gave a glowing eulogy of Senator Bulla as a man who would serve the people against those who are against their own interests. As for the young men whom the speaker represented, he spoke of them as lining up now, as their fathers did in 1861, against the forces of repudiation and anarchy, and determined to carry on to victory the banner of that true partiot and great statesman, William McKinley.

Mr. Dominguez spoke of the magnificent record of the Republican party, the true party of the people, which stands for America and Americans against the tide of immigration that threatens to overwhelm the country. As for his own past party affiliations, the speaker expressed deep repentence for the former errors of his ways, and regret for the disgrac

Bean growers along the coast north of Los Angeles complain that they have not had sufficient moisture, alough it is stated that the yield will be a fair average one.

The Eastern bean market was reported as follows by a New

Tork firm:

"For domestic white beans the market has undergone no change of importance. Stocks have come along quite moderately, and trade in all directions continues slack. Letters from the interior have been somewhat bullish and have calculated to make a stronger holding here, but they have not influenced receivers much, because of the narrowness of the outlet. It seems quite certain that the incoming erop will be considerably lighter than last year, especially in Canada, and the quality promises to be of a lower grade. In some sections of the State a few beans have been pulled, but we hope that farmers will not be in a hurry to market them. We do not need them now, and the vines should remain until the beans are well matured and dry. Marrow have been need them now, and the vines should remain until the beans are well matured and dry. Marrow have been selling this week mainly at $1.15 per bushel for choicest quality, a few nice lots shading 2½ cents. Medium and pea have held at $1 generally, but some off-grade stock has gone for less. White kidney entirely nominal. Exporters have not wanted many red kidney, and it has been easy to buy the best lots at $1.05. Last sale of yellow eye at $1.15. Turtle soup in very small compass and held higher; some ask more than $1.50 per bushel, the current quotation. Lima slightly firmer, but quiet."

The coming orange crop looks well, and although it will be much smaller than was at first expected, owing to the heavy dropping of the fruit, quality is expected to be better than the coming crop at more than 6000 carloads.

The condition of the local fruit market is a trifle better, that is to say, for first-class fruit. For lower grades of fruit it is difficult to obtain any reasonable quotations.

There is little change to report in the dried fruit market. Eastern dealers are buying from hand to mouth Stocks are light at present in the East and it is difficult to see how a rise in prices can be prevented before long, in view of the moderate crop this year. In the local produce market eggs and butter have been somewhat firmer dur-ing the past few days, otherwise there re no important changes to note.

The Chufa.

Among fodder crops for which great elaims are made is the chufa, which has been tried extensively in the South and is said to form a very valuable food for hogs. The plant is nearly related to the nut grass, which gives much trouble to Southern farmers but it does not seem inclined to be come a pest like that grass. The small roots are near the surface and ar

The trouble with most of these crop is that unreasonable claims are made for them at the start, and consequently many who try them are disap-pointed. which the benefits of cooperation can be more strikingly shown that in agriculture, and there is no section where this system can be made to work to so great an advantage as in Califorcially in the southern part of the State, where, with the aid of irrigation, it is possible for 250 families reside and make a good living within a radius of a mile.

The Times has frequently enlarged upon the advantages of this system of settling on the land in Southern California, and would like to see it more generally adopted. Cooperation has injured in the past by unwise and unpractical movements in that direction, but the fact that some colo nies have resulted unsuccessfully does not prove that cooperation is a failure, any more than the bankruptcy of a single horticulturist proves that there is no money in fruit-growing.

The main cause for the failures that in California-apart from such cases where the enterprise has been dishon-estly managed—has been the attempt to take away the independence of the individual settler to an unnecessary extent. This is a system that Americans will never take kindly to, however well it may work in other countries. There is, moreover, no need for any such experiments. It quite feasible for the members of a colony to be thoroughly united for purposes, and yet be as individually independent of each other as the members of the California fruit

It is scarcely necessary to enumerate the many advantages that attach to the cooperative system, when prop-erly planned and carried out. They are manifest from the very beginning, indeed, before the colony settles on the land, for it is evident that 250 purchasers can secure far better terms from the owner of a tract of land than could a single purchaser, or two or three purchasers. It is the differ-ence between buying land at whole-sale or at retail, and we all know what a big difference that makes, especially where water has to be brought on the land for irrigation, all of which can be done by cooperation among the settlers themselves. It is often the case that a tract which costs

Green Manuring.

Prof. Hilgard of the State University has been devoting special attention to the subject of supplying nitrogen to the soil by means of what is known as "green manuring." It has been known for some time that, while the larger number of our cultivated plants, and among them particularly the grains, must derive all the nitrogen they need from the small store in the soil (where it is contained in the "humus," black mold ) there is one group of ish the soil in nitrogen, but on the contrary, if used for green-manuring add materially to its store, so as to replenish the supply when required for grain culture. It is the plants com-prised within the pea family (leguminous plants, or "legumes,") embracing the pea, beans, clovers, vetches, lupins, etc.; also the acasias and related Hence the clovers have from improvement; while, where the climate is unfavorable to these, other plants of the same family have been substituted for them. In this State, where alfalfa is the general substitute for clover, the difficulty of plowing in a well-set alfalfa crop, and of getting rid of it when a clean field is wanted for other crops, has stood in the way of this very needful means of supply ing the land not only with nitrog but also with humus, so necessary as general soll-ingredient ond so com-California soils used preferably for fruit culture. The growing of green crops not of the leguminous tribe, merely for the sake of supplying humus, and returning only what was taken from the soil, has usually proved an unprofitable investment. Until within a few years the cause of the peculiar ability of the legumes to take nitrogen from the air during their growth was not understood. It through the agency of one of the many minute organisms called bacteria, which produces knotty excrescences on the roots of these plants that swarm with the minute organisms which take up nitrogen directly from the air, while the plant in its turn takes from them its own purposes. These root excres-cences or tubercles may be easily observed by any one making a careful examination of the roots of clovers or eas while in growth. In the course of a lecture delivered some time ago at the Farmers' Insti-tute in Monrovia, Prof. Hilgard gave the following information in regard to a plant which he considers may prove valuable for this purpose:

This is of especial interest in the case of orchards, in which it has often been noted that after having been kept completely free from weeds for a number of years, their production decreases in a marked degree, despite of fertilization, while at the same time the soli is difficult to keep in good loose tilth. "At first it was hoped that among the native clovers and lupins some might be found suitable for the purpose, but thus far the burr clover—a foreign immigrant—has seemed to answer better than any of these; an objection being, however, that it yields but a relatively small amount of herbage, and is apt to remain as a trouble-some weed.
"This season, in examining a num-some weed.

"This season, in examining a number of foreign legumes grown in the University Economic Garden, two were found whose roots are faily incrusted with tubercles, implying a very rapid absorption of nitrogen from the air. One of these has been so far investigated as to render it a hopeful subject for trial ot the large scale, and all available seed has been sown in order to produce a supply for distribution next winter. Experimental plots have also been sown at each of the four culture sub-stations, so as to test the plant in their several soils and climates this season.

"So far as the small-scale test shows, mates this season.

"So far as the small-scale test shows, this plant combines the advantage of quick development (being an annual) with an unusually heavy production of herbage; the latter having, in two different plots, been at the rate of twenty-four and twenty-six tons per acre, equal to about five tons of alr-dried hay. While its nitrogen-percentage is not as high as that of alfalfa or clover, its aggregate nitrogen-product would nevertheless be considerably greater than in the case of alfalfa, and more than twice as great as with burr ore than twice as great as with

Times has on several occasions referred to the possibilities of the cam-phor tree in Southern California. Cam-phor has become very scarce during the past few years, and brings a high price. A Florida paper notes that a firm in that State is about to go into the manufacture of camphor on a con-siderable scale. The firm has planted 13,000 camphor trees on its land and other parties have planted more trees. A small amount of camphor has already been manufactured, which has been sent to Washington to be analyzed. They made the camphor from the leaves of the tree, by a very simple chemical process, which only require a properly-constructed apparatus to produce the camphor in larger quanti-ties. The tree itself can be used, but these gentlemen will experiment further and ascertain which is the most productive, the trunk or the leaves of the tree, and it is quite probable that in a few years they will be large manu-facturers of camphor, which is now worth 65 cents per pound at wholesale. Mr. Hubbard, one of the firm, is a scientist, and Mr. Williams, his partner, is one of the most enterprising men in is one of the most enterprising men in Florida, so they are just the men to promote the success of such a project. They think that 100 pounds of leaves will produce two pounds of camphor, the cost of manufacture being light.

Some Causes of Failures.

(Florida Agriculturist:) The average American desires to have the appearance of doing well, whether he is or not, and in many cases this tendency brings not only himself into trouble but others with whom he associates or over whom his sayings and doings may have some influence. For instance, a man may start in some new project in which he has the utmost confidence, but when the project is put under way he must meet with numerous drawbacks that did not have a place in his plans and were not arranged for; hence, when the ledger is balanced he finds that the venture did not materialize as he had anticipated and planned it would, and he was a loser. To acknowledge that he has made a fallure requires more courage than he possesses and his desire to appear as doing well prevents him from telling the whole truth about his venture. He may not tell a direct falsehood, yet his replies to inquiries are such as would be misleading, and give the impression that it turned out all right. He may still have faith enough in his project to go still deeper and consequently people are led to invest their money in a way that they would have avoided had they known the whole truth. We know an orange-grower that tried to impress his neighbors and hearers that his method of handling and packing fruit was far in advance of theirs. When he received his returns for a shipment and the price received happened to be good, he proclaimed it was the direct result of his methods; but no one ever heard about the poor returns. The letter was quickly shoved down into his pocket and his neighbors were left to wonder why he never had any bad luck. It was noticed, however, that his wonderful (?) success did not make any very great improvement in his surroundings and that in reality he did not seem to get along so well as his less-knowing neighbors. This man, however, has his influence and some one is induced by his braggadocio ways to follow his methods with results that are disastrou Some Causes of Failures.

frequently the case in Florida garden-ing. Some one puts out an acre of a certain kind of vegetable, and hits everything just right, and large re-turns are the result. The wonderful "profit" is heralded abroad and at once numerous others attempt the same thing without first considering whether there is a chance for a failure and their entire labor expended. Again a great many venture on a large scale to grow fruit or vegetables without previous knowledge, and at the end of a few years they are stranded and want to blame some one for it. We have in mind a grape-grower who became en-thusiastic over the success of a few vines, and at once put out ten acres.

The fact that these varieties are kept, not only by the fancier, but by many practical poultrymen, who are making a living from them, guarantees proof that these breeds possess the qualities desired by this section.

Three of the most successful poultrymen in Los Angeles county keep White Leghorns, and after giving them a thorough trial for several years, they are well satisfied with the results obtained. The White Leghorn is not superior to many the sequel to the other Mediterard, is equal to the other Mediterard, is equal to the considered too small eaters, two good points in a country where "eggs are king" and grain is high. They possess beauty and vitality, and while considered too small for a market fowl, are nevertheless profitable, and will sell as high as the best of market fowls, owing to the demand for good layers. California farmers have and are still paying 312 per dozen for White Leghorn pullets.

Does it pay to purchase fowls at 31 each? Most assuredly, if the buyer understands how and when to buy. A White Leghorn pullet hatchedin March or April should, with good care, commence laying in September or October, and will continue to lay till January, averaging six dozen eggs. As eggs sell for from 30 cents to 40 cents per dozen at that season, then White Leghorn pullets, At this rate the farmer is justified to the control of the per will alword the per will be a change to the form the old reliable Dominique fowls. ## The California Beet Sugar Estate and Land Company Limited.

Having purchased the magnificent estate known as the CHINO RANCH, lying on the Southern Pacific Railroad, between Pomona and Ontario, are prepared to offer special inducements to farmers, either for the purchase or leasing of lands. It is our purpose to make this estate one of the most attractive to the colonist or land-seeker, by offering inducements in every reasonable way to their advantage.

The great Sugar Factory of the Chino Valley Beet Sugar Co. lies in the center of the estate, and their contracts for the purchase of the Beets for a series of years have been assigned to this Company, and under those contracts every farmer on the estate is protected in getting the same market price for his beets as each harvest rolls around. We invite the attention of all who are seeking desirable Lands to visit our office at Chino, when the capabilities of the land and its Actual Earning Capacity will be demonstrated by the actual results shown to be received by the farmers now operating the land.

Beet Lands, Fruit Lands, Grain Lands, Dairy Lands,

utility of the thoroughbred and then he will appreciate him; he will save your corn, your barley and make your money. Of course, breeding of pure bred hogs is a fad with some few wealthy men in the East, and prices are being carried to a high figure. At a public sale at Springfield, Ill., the Poland-China sow, "Minnis Model," sold for $1310, the highest price ever paid for a sow. But such astounding reports do not change the utility or intrinsic value of the thoroughbred.

Feed and Breed. There are a few men who profess to believe that the corn crib has more to do with the merits of the herd than other elements. Or, in other words, they put all the stress upon feed, allowing nothing for breeding. In a recent talk on hogs with an intelligent young man of my acquaintance, I mentiohed condition as a prevalent point when judging animals by comparison. Of course, fine condition is necessary for the development of certain merits, but my friend exclaimed: "I believe it is all in condition. A pig is a pig, only feed him; feed is what tells." I did not have time to propose an amendment to his pig, but I would like to name the amendment now. Before the feed, I would say select the individual and then feed him. I suggest that he select the best individual he can find in the average herd of the country, then he may select from my herd of Poland Chinas, blind fold. Take these two at weaning time, treat them exactly alike as to feed and other conditions and at the end of six months or any intervening period if he is not convinced that there is everything in breeding and individuallity, then he will be the first honest man to find such results. I have never made many experiments in the gain of individual hogs, but what few trials I have made have been quite sathonest man to find such results. I have never made many experiments in the gain of individual hogs, but what few trials I have made have been quite satisfactory to me at least. In one trial of a Poland-China pig, gaining ten pounds in seven days; and more recently of a young sow weighing 111 pounds at first weighing, and in forty days turned the scale at 181 pounds. days turned the scale at 181 pounds, making a gain at 1½ pounds per day. This may not appear remarkable compared with experiments recorded in many of the hog journals; but considering the age (five months) at weighing, it will perhaps do for a California many of the hog journals; but considering the age (five months) at weighing, it will perhaps do for a California hog.

Those Bacon Hogs. The latest fad in the hog ranks is the so-called "bacon hog"—Tamworth's Thin Rind Cheshires. These are simply weapons in the hands of English packers to strengthen the prejudice against American pork products. From a writer in the American Swineherd, I quote the following:

"Prof. Shaw advises us to use Tamworth and Yorkshire boars on our "dumpy-shaped sows" as the short cut to the bacon hogs or to ruin. He forgets that as soon as these coarse, slabsided beasts come into the land of plenty they fill out into better form. The bacon-hog craze means a backward movement or revolution of the hog business. The Poland-China and Berkshire, which have made their way into every hog-growing country because they excel in ability to convert grass and grain into wholesome, fine meat, are thus invited by an imported professor of agriculture to retire in favor of the ungainly foreign competitors, which they have knocked out in every show ring and from the stock yards even of America."

There is an idea prevailing with many people that cross-bred hogs are better than the thoroughbred, though they do not give us any sound reason for the idea. While it may not be entirely erroneous, I fall to perceive even one redeeming feature in such proceeding. There is certainly no logic in such a departure; for after scores of brainy men have spent the best years of their lives in establishing all the desirable qualities, and have become experts in producing individuals that register from 55 to 98 points by our score cards, can you or I reasonably expect by one cross to produce a superior porker? Some one may say we are not many of us breeding for the show ring. Very true, but we are all aiming at perfection, or should be at least, and we must not forget that the ultimate end of every hog is the pork barrel.

In India and China sorghum seed is very largely used for human food. It is regarded as preferable to rice, which is commonly supposed to be the maintenance of these peoples; constituting nearly one-half the world's population. In this country sorghum seed has been mainly used as feed for chickens and other farm stock.

A Cheap Paint.

(American Mechanic:) A method of palming farm buildings and country houses, while by no means new, is yet so little known and so deserving of wider application as to warrant a description. The paint has but two parts, being water lime or hydraulic cement and skim milk. The cement is placed in a bucket, and the skim milk, sweet, is gradually added, stirring constantly until just about the consitency of cream. The stirring must be thoroughly done to have an even flow, and if too thin the mixture will run on the building and look streaked. The proportions cannot be exactly stated, but a gallon of milk requires a full quart of cement, and sometimes a little more. This is a convenient quantity to mix at a time for one person to use. If too much is prepared the cement will, settle and harden before all is used.

A flat paint brush about four inches wide is the best implement to use with this mixture. Lay it on exactly as with oil paint. It can be applied to woodwork, old or new, and brick and stone. When dry the color is a light, creamy brown, or what some would call yellowish stone color. The skim milk cement paint, well mixed, without adding color has a good body, gives smooth, satisfactory finish on either wood or stone and wears admirably.

State of Political Feeling in the East Prof. J. M. Guinn, delegate to the National Encampment of the G.A.R. At St. Paul, Minn., returned to Los Angeles yesterday. He gives an ac-count of the state of political feeling in the east, which warms the cockles of a good Republican heart, with of a good Republican heart, with even greater certainty of victory.

Prof. Guinn is in a position to know what he is talking about. He spent some weeks in an assemblage of 60,000 men, called together from every State in the Union, and made it his particular business to ascertain the political status of every section represented in the encampment. Beside this, the professor has done some traveling on his own account, having journeyed 8000 miles since he left California, and visited sixteen States.

The Bryan wave struck the country shortly before Prof. Guinn left California, and the reaction had just begun to set in when he arrived in the fast.

shortly before Prof. Guinn left California, and the reaction had just begun to set in when he arrived in the East. Now, the sentiment in favor of McKinley and the principles he represents is growing greater every day, and no doubt of ultimate victory is entertained in the East. Every State east of the Mississippi is solid for McKinley, and in most of them, the majority promises to be overwhelming. Ohio will probably go 150,000, and a prominent member of the Republican State Central Committee of Illinois, assured Prof. Guinn that Illinois was certain to give McKinley at least 100,000 majority.

In the Grand Army encampment, there was hardly a Bryan man to be found. The few who did declare at first for free silver were so unmercifully guyed by their patriotic comrades, that they soon removed their silver badges and fell in with the procession. Of the sixteen delegates from California, not one was a silver man, and even the delegates from avowedly silver States were for sound money.

Gen. Sickles, a life-long Democrat.

avowedly silver states white for south, money.

Gen. Sickles, a life-long Democrat, attended the encampment, and Prof.

Guinn spoke highly of the stirring addresses made by him to the veterans, exposing the fallacy of the free-silver idea, and urging ardent support for McKinley, sound money and protection.

idea, and urging ardent support for McKinley, sound money and protection.

On his return, Prof. Guinn passed through North Dakota, Montana, Idaho, Washington and Oregon, and pursued his political investigations everywhere. Although these States are claimed by the silverites, there is a strong McKinley element all through them, especially among the farmers and cattle men. Only the silver mining districts are solid for the doctrine that seems to be most to their interest. As for Washington and Oregon, the prevailing feeling seems to be that they will go Republican.

"I have found more silver feeling here in one day than I have at any time in the East," said Prof. Guinn, regretfully. "People in Los Angeles seem to be crazy over it. This is the only city I have seen that shows a free-silver Republican. There were just two in Ohlo, I believe, and one was a party boss, who had been turned down, and felt sore about it. The other was a greenbacker, who has never voted the Republican ticket when he could get anything else to vote."

The Art Association.

The Art Association, of which Senator White is president, Dr. J. C. Fletcher, vice-president, and Malcolm Macleod, secretary, is preparing to remove to its new quarters, St. Vincent's Hall, where the art exhibit will be installed and be opened to the public about the end of the month.

It is probable that the association will take part in the joint opening of

lege, to celebrate the devotion again of the St. Vincent Hall to the cause of educational progress.

The usual course of lectures are being prepared by the officers of the association, and will shortly be announced.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

OFFICE OF THE TIMES,

Los Angeles, Sept. 11, 1896. WHAT ENGLISH BIMETALLISTS WANT. American free-silver papers are fond of printing statements from British financiers, in which the latter are represented as strongly indorsing the free coinage of silver by the United States at a ratio of 16 to 1. Recently the Herald printed a statement of this kind, supposed to have appeared as an editorial in the London Financial News in March last. Last month the News denounced the statement as a forgery, saying that no such editorial had ever appeared in the editorial had ever appeared in the paper, and adding:

"So far from advocating free silver coinage, we have persistently pointed out that it spells repudiation, and the withdrawal of all European capital."
Yesterday the Herald published the following in regard to the asserted views of Mr. Lidderdale, ex-governor of the Paper of England:

following in regard to the asserted views of Mr. Lidderdale, ex-governor of the Bank of England:

"Ex-Gov. Lidderdale of the Bank of England said recently in a conversation upon bimetallism: 'You see, they are coming rapidly to our views, and what is lost by legislation can be restored by legislation.' Mr. Lidderdale said that he believed 16 to 1 the proper ratio, and further: 'Your country (referring to the United States) if it saw fit and had the courage of its convictions, could force the issue of silver restoration upon us, because in so doing you would win the trade of the silver-using countries, such as India, China, Japan, Mexico and South America, to such an extent that England and Europe generally would be compelled to follow suit in order to retain their prestige in those countries."

pelled to follow suit in order to retain their prestige in those countries."
In regard to this lie No. 2, the London correspondent of the United States Investor, in its issue of August 29, had the following absolute denial of the statement that Mr. Lidderdale favors free coinage at a ratio of 16 to 1:
"This I know to be an absolute falsehood. Mr. Lidderdale's bimetallism des not contemplate putting a fictitious value on silver, which would cause a much greater confusion and change of values than has been caused in the past by the rupture of the par the past by the rupture of the par exchange. All that the English biof exchange. All that the English blmetallists contemple is to fix the ratio between silver and gold at a little less than the commercial ratio existing prior to the contemplated opening of the Indian mints. Take it today, they would fix a ratio at 25 or 27 to 1 in conjunction with the Indian mints. There are, I admit, members of the league who favor a 16-to-1 ratio, but their voices carry much further than their influence." influence."
Now for lie No. 3!

ADULTERATED BUTTER IN EU-ROPE. In a communication from the British Board of Agriculture, a return is made of samples of imported butter analyzed under the direction of the board from May, 1895, to February, 1896, hoard from May, 1895, to February, 1896, inclusive. The total number of samples so analyzed was 995, representing the products of twelve different countries. The countries in whose products adulterated specimens were found are as follows: Belgium, 5 samples, 1 adulterated; Denmark, 192 samples, 8 adulterated; Germany, 154 samples, 8 adulterated; Holland, 250 samples, 66 adulterated; Norway, and Sweden, 109, 2 adulterated; Russia, 49 samples, 5 adulterated. The countries contributing samples among which no adulterated specimens were found are: Argentina, 4 samples; Austria, 57 samples; Canada, 29; France, 62; New Zealand, 21; United States, 63 samples. In regard to the adulterated products the noteworthy points are the tremendous proportion, numbering more than 25 per cent., contributed from Holland, and the fact that Denmark, by far the largest contributor of foreign butter products to the British market and enjoying hitherto an almost irreproachable reputation in the butter market, contributed inclusive. The total number of samerto an almost irreproachable reputa-tion in the butter market, contributed on a total of 182 specimens, 8 adulter-ated, or nearly 5 per cent. In regard to the other countries the presence of Argentina in the British butter mar-ket, even though no doubt to a lim-ited extent, is worthy of note.

GENERAL BUSINESS TOPICS.

CONSUMPTION OF WHEAT. It is well known that opinions differ greatly among experts in regard to the annual consumption of wheat per cap-ita in this country. Bradstreet's has been making an interesting inquiry among heads of families, households and others, institutions, public, semi-public, educational, charitable, penal and others, at representative centers, at cities, towns and in the country dis-tricts throughout the United States, at cities, towns and in the country districts throughout the United States, with a desire to learn, as far as possible, to what extent wheat is consumed per annum per capita, so, far, as the ground covered may indicate.

For nearly twenty years it has been estimated by the officials of the Agricultural Department that the average annual consumption of wheat per capita throughout the United States has been 42-3 bushels, and this has entered into official reports and estimates, in which it has been sought to arrive at the quantity of wheat carried over at the end of cereal years; or, at least, into the calculations to test the results of reports of farmers' reserves and other stocks of wheat.

The result of the investigation leads to the conclusion that the total annual consumption of wheat flour per capita in this country is approximately 240 pounds, which is equivalent to about three hundred and twenty-three pounds of wheat.

In the course of the investigation some interesting facts were ascertained.

Thus, one of the more important New some interesting facts were ascertained.

Thus, one of the more important New York hotels, which fed an average of 500 people daily during March, used 24,303 pounds of wheat flour for that period, an average of forty-eight pounds each; another and similar hotel entertained 525 people daily at table during that month, supplying them with 27,918 pounds of wheat flour, an average of a little more than fifty-three pounds each. The mere fact that another and equally prominent hotel fed an average of 650 guests daily during March, and that they consumed an average of only 21.5 pounds each during the month, would seem to reflect either on the accuracy of the two preceding instances of the consumption of flour at hotels, or on its own report.

United States on this class of manufactures.

In Spanish it is called perfilado; in English, "drawn work." It is all done with needles—sometimes very fine needles, and the finest spool thread (No. 100, Coats.) made of long American and Egyptian cotton. For a long time, perfilado was made an industrial feature of the public schools—every girl learned to make it. In this way, the art of making this beautiful work was acquired, and others were taught in the family until nearly every girl and woman in Matamoros could either make it or assist in its manufacture.

Although the work is hard and difficult, the earnings are very small, often not 15 cents a day.

Wholesaie Quotations Revised Daily.

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 11, 1896.

Outside of butter there is practically no change noted in local markets. Dealers in vegetables and green fruits report it a little dull today.

(The following jobbing quotations are for several grades of the products mentioned. For an extra choice article a somewhat better price than the highest quoted may be obtained, and for a decidedly inferior quality the seller will probably have to accept less than the lowest published quotation.)

DRAWN NEEDLE WORK FROM MEXICO. During the past year or two, in some of the stores in Los Angeles, there have been exposed for sale specimens of beautiful "drawn work," manufactured in Mexico. It is a gossamer-like fineness, and almost too delicate to handle. These goods are made in Mexico by women and girls, the chief center of the industry being the city of Matamoros. The United States Consul at that city reports that thousands of dollars in value of this work, which is known as perfilado, is exported annually to the United States. Agents in Atlanta, Washington, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and other cities are engaged in selling perfilado. Some of it is very expensive, a year being required to make a single piece. Tablecloths, bedspreads, covers for tables, lounges and chairs require the longest time, and are most costly, bringing from $5 to $100 in Mexican 400000. Panuellos, or handkerchiefs, are made either of silk or very fine linen, worth $10 to $25 each; then there are cheaper grades that can be bought for $1 and $2. bushels, spains: 1,417,572 last-year. Accounts of disappointing results in apring-wheat States are numerous, but it is difficult to reconcile short estimates with heavy marketing at low prices. Corn is almost wholly out of danger and the yield is generally expected to be the largest, as the price there is to be the largest, as the price there is to lowest ever known. Tailures for the week have been 315 in the United States, against 187 last year, and 47 in Canada, against 64 last year.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The Evening Post's London financial cablegram says this was another flat day in the stock markets on dearer money, and the idea that the bank's rate of discount may go to 3 per cent, next week. Prices, however, closed above the worst. American securities were dull until New York prices arrived, when there was a sharp rally. The close was about the best. The Chinese loan is out tonight. Details are as cabled yesterday. It will help to harden the money market heve and in Berlin.

CHICAGO, Sept. 11.—Wheat was rather nervous at the outset. The government crop report substantially met the expectations which had been formed of it, but its effect had already been largely discounted, and an advance of \( \frac{1}{2} \) in the opening figures was shown, and this strength was only momentary. Minneapolis and Duluth reported the receipts of 1143 cars, 85 more than last year. Bradstreet's Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Bradstreet's tomorrow will say that the feeling among 'jobbers' and manufacturers last week that an improvement in the demand for seasonable staples was in sight, was evidently well-founded, for at more than a dozen centers South and West the demand is now more active, the volume of sales has increased and the general outlook is much more favorable for business later in the autumn. Notwithstanding the Labor day interruption, the week's volume of business is still heavier. New Orleans bank failures, however, have restricted loans and the volume of trade at a time when the early movement of cotton and sugar prospects had stimulated trade. The shrinkage of production of pig-iron in the United States from a rate equal to 10,000,000 tons per annum to less than two-thirds that quantity is proving an effective remedy for stagnation in the iron and steel industries, and already the demand has begun to reasert itself. There is a more encouraging look to the price movement also. Exports of wheat, flour included as wheat, from both coasts of the United States and Montreal this week, amount to 3,990,000 bushels; as compared with 3,590,000 bushels last week; 1,185,000 bushels in the corresponding week a year ago; 2,783,000 bushels in the week of 1893.

Bradstreet's review of the New York stock market will say tomorrow that, in spite of some reactionary impulses, the tome of speculation during the week has been strong. The market is in every way a narrow one, depending upon the professional element for its activity, outside participation, either from one of speculation of the short interests which partied with their holdings have continued to buy back their securities. Part of the reactionary tendencies on Wednesday and Thursday reige due it seems, to the bank failures at New Orleans, but the unfavorable developments were in the main offset by the continued r

Dun's Weekly Review.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say that better prospects and relief from monetary anxiety do not yet bring larger demands for finished products, though large buying of pigiron, wool, leather, hides, cotton and other materials continues to show a growing belief that a general upward movement in prices will come with the replenishment of dealers' stocks this fail. The most prices are extremely low, so that nothing more than an ordinary demand would advance them. But bank failures at New Orleans cause temporary hesitation; crop returns indicate disappointment in some cotton and some spring-wheat States; prices of corn and oats make it unprofitable to sell at present; the number of manufacturing works and mines in operation does not gain, but rather decreases; reductions of wages are somewhat numerous, occasionally resisted by strikes, and all these conditions diminish for a time the buying power of the people. While many think general improvement cannot come until the election has removed political uncertainties, others expect soon to see the result anticipated in trade. The weekly output of pig-iron decreased 26,005 tons in August, a shrinkage of 40 per cent. Unsold stocks increased 62,000 tons in August, sculusive of those accumulating in the hands of the great steel companies. Strictly not half the iron market or fromworking capacity is now employed, and the demand for finished products does not grow, but heavy speculative purchases of pig, especially from southern works, have sustained prices. The output of Connellsville coke was 66,000 tons weekly, against 166,000 tons October 6 last year, and 3640 ovens are at work against 15,500 then, with 10,000 workers now idde. Sales of wool for the week have about equalled the normal consumption for the first time in several months, not because manufacturers have more orders or are doing more work, for no gain is seen in the demand or output. The buying is

NEW ORLEANS BANKS.

Wave of Distrust and the Trouble

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.-The Bank of Commerce, which everybody thought would be able to weather the wave of distrust and suspicion which followed the recent wreck of the American Na-tional Bank, was compelled to close its doors. This morning there was a large crowd outside the bank, and all man-crowd outside the bank, and all manner of surmises and opinions were being freely aired by the crowd, but the sum and substance seemed to be that the Bank of Commerce had adopted the only course left to it.

President Nichol made the following explanation:

"Owing to the unprecedented run on the bank in the past six weeks, and the impossibility of realizing with sufficient rapidity on the assets, and, after consulting with the vice-president of the clearing-house, submitting a statement to them, we deemed it advisable in order to protect the interests of depositors, so they might be paid in full, in a short while, as well as the stockholders, to take the step of liquidation, a step which none feel more than ation, a step which none feel more than stockholders, to take the step of liquidation, a step which none feel more than we do."

The bank has deposits of between $300,000 and $400,000, while the assets are about $800,000.

The Bank of Commerce was founded in 1887, with a capital of $100,000. The plan was to do a general banking business, to furnish accommodations to all classes of patrons, from men of millions to wage-earners, and also to do a general collecting business. It found a fruitful field and its success had been such as to inspire the highest confidence of its founders.

At 1:30 o'clock this afternoon there was a lively run on the People's Bank. So many people were in line that it extended into the streets. There is considerable excitement, but no trouble of any kind. The officials of the People's Bank do not seem worried over the run, and all checks for $100 cr under are being rapidly cashed.

Pearce, Harry T. Atkins and Henry Pearce, owners of the Franklin Cotton Mills, doing an extensive cotton business in this city under the name of Pearce, Atkins & Co., and Henry Pearce Sons Company, assigned today as a company and as individuals to William C. Cochran, cotton-mill owner. The assets are $240,000; liabilities, $163,000. The assets consist of $110,000 in personality and $130,000 in realty.

The cause of the crash is due to slow collections and dull business. There are no preferences. Pearce, Atkins & Co. have a big store here and Henry Pearce's Sons own the big Deer Creek cotton mills. Henry Pearce's Sons and Pearce, Atkins & Co. are successors of the firm started in 1837 by John Pearce and Henry Pearce first commenced manufacturing cotton gins and spinning machinery which were used in the South, and in making the trades they were sometimes compelled to take cotton in exchange. This induced them to go into the manufacture of cotton goods. The firm of Pearce, Atkins & Co. has been in existence twenty years and the firm of Henry Pearce's Sons ten years. Several hundred employés will be thrown out of work.

SUFFERING MINERS.

Nearly a Thousand Wish to Get Away from Alaska. (BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.) WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Informa-ion received at the Treasury Depart ment indicates that there is likely to be much suffering among the miners at Cook's Inlet, who are returning from the Alaskan gold fields, unless the commercial companies which took them north provide for their passage home.

More than a year ago the department notified the companies that hereafter the government could not furnish transportation for these miners, and that if the companies took the miners north, they should look out for their return. It is said that if all of the cutters in the Berling Sea were pressed into service, they could not accommodate more than 120 men. There are said to be nearly 1000 of these returning miners now at Cook's Inlet.

PASADENA.

ALARMING PREVALENCE OF TEXAS FEVER AMONG CATTLE.

Strict Quarantine Has Been Es-tablished—Origin of the Disease, Opening of the Public Schools.

PASADENA, Sept. 11.—(Regular Correspondence.) Dr. Ward B. Rowland, County Veterinarian, says that Texas fever exists among cattle to an alarming extent in this county, but not in any dairy herds, so far as he is able to determine. On one pasture which he quarantined, below El Monte, seventeen deaths have already occurred in the past few weeks. The occurred in the past few weeks. The remaining cattle on the pasture are lit-erally covered with the Texas tick. The disease is often called bloody crally covered with the Texas tick. The disease is often called bloody murrain and Dr. Rowland has made sufficient post-mortem examinations to justify him in the statement that it is the true Texas fever. On one of the Baldwin ranges the cattle have been dying in large numbers, and balle holding a post-mortem at one place. Dr. Rowland saw Mexicans akiming the carcasses of dead animals, and carrying off the flesh for the purpose of using it as food, presumably to make it into tamales. On one pasture are cattle belonging mainly to Pasadena owners. These cattle are quarantined, and Dr. Rowland will neither permit them to be removed from the pasture, nor allow other cattle to be placed on the pasture hext year. While this will work a hardship to the owners both of the cattle and the pasture. Dr. Rowland is of the opinion that the utmost caution is necessary. The disease in the Ei Monte district, which is about cight miles from Pasadena, is traceable to some Texas horses placed on the pasture by a Mr. Slater who lived at Alhambra about two years ago. The owners of the pasture did not then know their danger, when they saw him pleking ticks off his horses. The ciks that are characteristic of the disease are called "woodtleks," by the ignorant, but Dr. Rowland says they are not that insect, but one which is derominated Bophilus bovis. The Texas fever is not, however, confined to the vicinity of Pasadena, as it exists to such an alarming extent throughout the State, that the Federal authorities have quarantined the cattle, and permit none to leave our borders.

PASADENA PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

The formal announcement of the opening of the Pasadena public schools on September 21 has been sent forth by Supervising Principal Graham, who will be at his office in the Wilson building every morning next week from 9 to 12 o'clock to confer with those who wish to enter school. Examinations will be held at the Wilson building September 17 and 18, for those pupils who falled to pass in June, and teachers who can conveniently do so are requested to be present and assist in this work. The High School teachers will meet at the Wilson school building. Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock to arrange classes and programme, and on Saturday, September 19, at 10 a.m., the building principals will meet at the Wilson, and at 2 o'clock in the afternoon of the same day the teachers of the city schools will meet at the same building. Lists of books are in the hands of the dealers, and pupils this year are asked to come to school Monday fully equipped for work, in order that there may be no loss of time.

A BAD FIRE.

A BAD FIRE The residence of William Mason, at the corner of Orange Grove avenue and Cypress street, caught fire this evening about 8 o'clock and was almost totally destroyed, its contents being nearly all consumed. The distance ing nearly all consumed. The distance is so great from the engine-house to the locality where the fire occurred, that the flames had made considerable headway before the department arrived. They did the best they could under the circumstances, but the whole rear portion of the house was consumed and the interior of the remaining portion badly damaged. The loss cannot at present be estimated, but it is partially covered by insurance.

Correspondence.) The inquest in the case of the late W. I. Kearse, who was shot Thursday evening while attemptshot Thursday evening while attempting to break into the house of his father-in-law, was held this morning at Guidinger's undertaking rooms. The testimony developed substantially the same facts as related in today's Times. One of the additional points brought out was that before Mr. Morris shot Kearse the latter had stepped on to the rear plazza of the Morris residence and had actually commenced breaking in the door. The door was propped within, and both Mr. and Mrs. Morris begged Kearse to go away. Instead of doing so Kearse forced the door and opened it far enough so he had nearly effected an entrance when the fatal opened it far enough so he had nearly effected an entrance when the fatal shots were fired. The testimony also showed that two or three days ago, anticipating there would be trouble. Morris consulted attorneys, and said he feared for his life and wanted to know what was the best thing to do in the matter,

The jury found that "thedeceased came to his death by a gunshot wound inflicted by J M. Morris in the act of defending his own life and family."

Kearse leaves five children by a former marriage, only one of whom is in this country, and his whereabouts are unknown.

Uncle Collis Seeking to Name Three New Supervisors and Thus Se-cure a Franchise — Randsburg News—House Burned.

SAN BERNARDINO, Sept. 11.-(Reg ular Correspondence.) The Southern Pacific Company has given to local pol-litics a hypodermic injection which may or may not prove to be an opiate. It Supervisors recently laid the railroad's petition for a new franchise on Colton avenue on the table "for future consideration." The company evidently fears that the Supervisors may forget to give the petition that consideration, for it is said to be taking steps to secure the election of a board pledged in advance to grant the franchise.

Three members of the Board of Su-

Three members of the Board of Supervisors retire this fall, being the members from the Redlands, Highland and desert districts. Last evening, it is reported, a representative of the railroad was closeted with Democrats in Redlands, to discuss the proposition of that party placing in nomination a man who would stand pledged to vote for the franchise, and while it is not positively known that the deal was consummated, the inference of certain comments is that everything was left in a perfectly satisfactory condition to all parties present.

What steps are being taken to secure the election of proper representatives of the railroad from the other districts unfortunately is not known, but it seems a safe proposition that the road would not attempt to fill one vacancy without attempting the same thing in the other districts.

It is true that there is a large proportion of people anxious to get the road into San Bernardino, but the sacrifice of one of the finest and most important thoroughfares in the county to gain that end seems entirely unnecessary. Even with the motor trains on the road, runaways are common, and life is in continued jeopardy on the avenue. As good a right-of-way could be secured off the avenue, though it might cost something to obtain it.

This particular right-of-way, however, is not the only matter in question. There is no doubt that before the terms of the men to be elected expire, the same company will have occasion to ask for a franchise between San Bernardino and Redlands, Crafton and Beaumont, and perhaps in other parts of the county, and it is a matter of public concern that the men chosen be not committed in advance to grant whatever the company may ask.

RANDSBURG DISTRICT.

Is Randsburg mining district to be a "camp?" That question has been "Camp?"

Is Randsburg mining district to be a "camp?" That question has been asked many a time, and it begins to look as though the hardy prospectors there were determined to answer it in the affirmative. Gen. W. R. McComb is in from Randsburg, and from what he has to say it is evident that the population is steadily growing, while the desert mining district is taking on the appearance of a town, with hotels and other provisions for the comfort of the people. There have recently been several finds of placer mines of honsiderable richness, and twenty stamps are continuously pounding at ore that yields from $110 to $130 per ton, thus giving to the district an output of gold of no mean importance. But two shafts have reached a depth of 100 feet, and consequently there is nothing to determine to what depth the gold extends. Randsburg lies at an altitude of $700 feet, being, therefore, above the terrific heat of the desert.

Stages reach the town from Mojave on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, being obliged to traverse the new county road across fifty miles of desert. Now, that the backbone of summer is broken, the number of people arriving is continuously increasing, and there is every indication that this coming winter the district will be a verticable "camp" with activity enough to satisfy any old prospector.

VENTURA COUNTY.

THE UNTERRIFIED AND THE POP WILL TRAIN TOGETHER.

The Democrats Expect to Scoop the Pot in the Division of Nomina-tions—Waldo J. is Recovering.

VENTURA, Sept 11.—(Regular Correspondence.) Yesterday was primary election day in this county, and the 'unwashed" turned out to the number of forty-nine in this city to voice their choice of delegates who will sit in convention tomorrow in the interest of silver, Bryan and Populism. Populism, because fusion is in the air and Andrew Jackson Democracy will be snowed under in the scramble for office. By a singular coincidence the whiskered sons of Populism meet in convention in this city at the same time, and but feast of fusion shall be ripe. Between the two conventions, nominees will be named to fill the office of Superior Judge, State Senate, Assembly and three places on the Board of Su-and three places on the Board of Su-pervisors.

At this writing it looks as though the "unterrified," who, for this occa-sion only, have renounced the tradi-tions of Jefferson, Jackson, Benton and Tilden, and adopted the yawp of Bryan and repudiation, will scoop the pot consisting of the nominees for the Senate and Assembly and two of the Senate and Assembly and two of the three Supervisors, in return for which the sons of Populism will receive the Superior Judge and the remaining Supervisor.

Some red-hot resolutions are promised, one of which, denouncing the secret ballot, as used in the Republican convention, will be a corker.

RUMORS AND FACTS.

It is generally conceded that Hon W. E. Shepherd will receive the nomination and fusion indorsement for the State Senate, while Thomas O. Toland will gather in the Assembly plum. Mr. Toland, however, has an opponent for the honor, in the person of R. A. Dague of Santa Paula, a recent convert to the theory of free silver. Mr. Dague will have the solid vote of the Santa Paula delegation, and promises to make a hot fight for the nomination. This is a year for honoring new converts, and George S. Barnes, brother of the chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, is working every known device to secure the nomination for Supervisor in the Ojai district. If he joins hands with Convert Dague, Mr. Toland may find a snag in his path. It is generally conceded that Editor John McGonigle of the Ventura Democrat is master of the situation, and that as he wills, so will it come to pass. A nation and fusion indorsement for the

WALDO J. IMPROVING.

There are two happy men in Ventura county, to-wit, Veterinary Surgeon J. Streets and Jimmy Mack, owner and driver of Waldo J., the pacing wonder of Ventura country. Ten days ago Waldo J. was given up as dead to the pacing world. The only man who entertained any hope that he might pull through was Dr. Streets, who has fought night and day for the one chance of saving him. Last night the change came and hope is now entertained that the white ghost will round to, and live to make a lower record than 2:08, at which notch he now stands. Waldo J., born and raised in Ventura county, is looked upon by the general public as their personal property, and congratulations are pouring in from all sides, now that the word has gone forth that he will live to repeat he former victories in the harness division.

Race-goers throughout Southern California will be pleased to learn that Hueneme has decided to give a three days' race meeting, beginning Thursday, October 1. There will be three races on the card the first day, a half-mile dash for two-year-olds, maidens allowed five pounds, a 3:00 trotting and a three-quarter-mile dash for tree-years and upward.

The second day's meet will include a five-eighth mile, all ages, seven-eighths of a mile dash, all ages, and 2:40 trotting class. Saturday October 3, will be the big day of the meeting, with four races on the list. Novelty, saddle horse race, prizes for each quarter, and the mile. Five and one-half furlong dash, consolation race, and 2:20 class trotting, and an open trot for named horses. As soon as it was settled that the Ventura Agricultural Association would not give a meeting the merchants of Hueneme subscribed a purse to cover the expenses of a meeting at the seaside track, and a big meeting is now an assured fact, as demands for etall room and entries are coming in rapidly to Henry Delaney, the secretary.

Meantime Ching Chung, a vegetable vender, had seen the fire from where he was at work unloading his wagongs short distance away. He selzed an ax and rushed to the scene, realizing full well the danger to the children.

When he reached the front door of the house he thought it locked and with his ax soon battered it down and made his way to the bedroom. The terrified children were quieted and carried to a place of safety by the intrepid Mongolian.

The fire occurred at an hour when the streets were filled with people and the reflection of the flames gave the impression that all of Chinatown was on fire. The people flocked toward the fire, some on foot and others in hacks. Every street leading to the scene was filled and hundreds of wheelmen augmented the crowd.

The burned building was located in the rear of a large storeroom, also owned by Mon Sing, in which was stored several thousand dollars' worth of goods, and at one time the destruction of this building seemed certain. Sing's dwelling was a few feet back of this storeroom and on the first floor was a parlor, furnished with costly carpets, tapestries and oaken furniture. The walls were adorned by a number of valuable paintings and the whole effect of the room was one of oriental splendor. The other rooms on the first floor were equally as well furnished.
